Trick or Treat as Kids Pull Hallowe'en Pranks

By DON INGHAM

Tonight's the night all the mothers of young children have been waiting for.

By 10 o'clock their little hobgoblins will be tucked into bed, and they can relax with another Halloween, and its flurry of costumes, put away for another year.

Costumes are nine-tenths of the fun of Halloween, and wondrous to behold are the results of maternal sewing, stitching, and scheming.

One little boy, who has been chanting "trick or treat" for days, will demand tribute from his neighbors in the garb of a tramp.

The costume was easy. A pair of father's trousers, condemned as dusters, was shortened by about 18 inches. An abandoned shirt, a piece of rope in place of suspenders, a battered bone-dry hat, and a 10-cent mask, all hung on a nine-year-old boy, made the most appealing, lugubrious-looking little hobo in town.

The little fellow across the street told his mother he wanted to go haunting as "Red Skelton."

"What kind of costume would that be?" asked his mystified mother.

"Just a black suit with a 'skelton' painted on, and a 'skelton' mask. It'd be easy, Mum," he said.

"Mum" got the idea, but decided to paint the "skelton" white.

Many little elves, however, plan on a few visits to their friendly neighbors, then a high old time at their school where one of scores of school parties has been arranged.

It's a far cry from the deprecations their fathers used to commit in the name of good clean fun, but a lot nicer for both the kids and the neighborhood.

Bonfires and fireworks will make the city sound like a dish of breakfast food—snap, crackle, pop—but all the fires will be well supervised and there will be plenty of refreshments and entertainment to keep the assorted

Outlawing Of Fireworks Considered

There is a possibility that sale of fireworks for Halloween will be outlawed in Victoria.

If things get too rough during tonight's Halloween celebrations the "outlaw" ban may be placed on fireworks for future celebrations.

This was indicated today at a meeting of the city police commission.

Chief of Police John Blackstock was ordered by the board to give a report on tonight's happenings in regard to firecrackers and bombs, and if the picture is bad the board will seek authorization through the city council to have sale of fireworks banned.

Convicts End 4-Day Riot; Hostages Safe.

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 31 (AP)—Convicts ended their four-day rebellion at Menard State Prison today and released their seven hostages before Governor Adlai Stevenson carried out plans for making a personal appeal to them.

The rebel convicts capitulated after an ultimatum was delivered by Michael Seyfrit, state director of public safety.

Seyfrit told the insurgents, who had been bottled up in the prison's east cell block since Monday, that unless they surrendered heavily armed state troopers would cut through the cell house doors with torches and "use whatever force is necessary to restore order."

After releasing their hostages, the 339 convicts marched back to their cells.

Ike Hits Adlai's State As Campaign Nears End

Child May Have Started Fatal Fire

Accidental Death Inquest Verdict

Suggestion that three-year-old Edward Thomas started the fire which caused his death and the death of his 1½-year-old brother, Wallace, and burned down his parents' frame house at the East Saanich Indian Reservation last Tuesday morning came out today at an inquest.

Edward Thomas Sr., father of the deceased children, testified there had been a half gallon of gasoline in a glass bottle left on an unused cook stove in the house. He said, too, that there were matches on a low shelf and that the child Edward liked to play with matches.

Robert Godfrey, deputy chief of the Central Saanich Volunteer Fire Department, testified that Edward's tiny body had been recovered from the debris close to the old cook stove. His smaller brother was found on a burned mattress in another corner of the wreckage.

ACCIDENTAL

The jury brought in a verdict of accidental death in the case, but submitted a number of recommendations for preventing similar fatalities in future.

The jury recommended that two public telephones be installed on the reservation so that alarms can be quickly dispatched to the Central Saanich department when fires break out.

It came out in evidence that one resident of the reservation made application for a telephone some time ago but was told he could not have one because of the long waiting list. The company said also, it was stated, that the Indians could not be put on the telephone line running through their reservation since that was a private line to James Island.

ASK NEW BRIDGE

The jury recommended secondly that a new bridge be constructed leading to the reserve. The present bridge is not deemed safe for heavy fire trucks.

Firemen attending the Thomas fire had to leave their truck at the bridge, take off their portable pump, and transfer to a panel delivery truck to reach the fire.

About five minutes were lost.

The jury also recommended that the Indian reservation be placed under the jurisdiction of the B.C. Fire Marshall, and that steps be taken by proper authorities to enforce a section of the Child Protection Act which jury-men believed provided that infants should not be left alone.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Thomas were away from the house at the time of the fire. The father was cooking crabs on the beach. He could not see his house because of fog. Mrs. Thomas, who was last to leave the house, said she had not locked the door.

'Little Hope' For Life of Mrs. Crosby

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 31 (UP)—Dixie Lee Crosby, wife of crooner Bing Crosby, remained in highly critical condition today, and doctors said they have little hope she would survive.

Thousands of letters and wires of sympathy poured into the family's Holmby Hills home, where her husband and four sons maintained a bedside vigil.

Mrs. Crosby, 40, has been in a coma since Sunday, when she suffered a relapse after a recent major abdominal operation. She has been unwell for several years.

Crosby's regularly scheduled C.B.S. radio show was not heard last night. Judy Garland filled in for the crooner.

SUN NEVER SETS ON FLAG BUT BRITISH LADIES DO

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Reuters)—The seat of a lady's under-pants is no place for the Union Jack, coronation or no coronation.

The patriotic bustle, offered recently by an English costume manufacturer, drew this comment today from Tailor and Cutter, clothing trade journal.

"It seems that our flag today gets scanty respect," the magazine says. "Is this merely another instance of Britain's being sat upon?"

Looking for a bright side, the magazine says there may be precedents.

"As far as we know the accession of the Bolshevik in Soviet Russia brought no denunciation of the wearers of red flannels."

Wild Atlantic Claims 2 Ships

Swedish, U.S. Craft Swallowed Up; Two Lose Lives in Savage Gales

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 31 (CP)—The first gale of the traditional storm season blew itself out over Greenland today, after sinking two ships and taking at least two lives.

The 700-ton Swedish cargo vessel Ryholm sank in the St. Lawrence river 23 miles east of Quebec after colliding with the Swiss freighter Basilea.

All crew members apparently were rescued and the Basilea was only slightly damaged.

Two deaths were reported earlier. John Leonard, 28, of St. John's, Nfld., was lost overboard from the Queen of Bermuda 35 miles off the coast from Queen City, Md. Albert Keeping, 21, of Grand Bank, Nfld., was lost overboard from another ship.

R.C.A.F. search and rescue here, meanwhile reported—that the 2,500-ton Norwegian freighter Dux, earlier reported missing, had been located in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

The storm first struck off Newfoundland Wednesday and brought with it winds up to 40 miles an hour. Today it was blowing itself out over southern Greenland.

The trawler Newton took the worst pounding. Her 10-man crew attempted to abandon the ship when pumps couldn't keep up with the leaks.

Lifeboats were smashed against the side of the ship when they lowered them, and the crew had to remain on board until the St. Nicholas manoeuvred over to the side of the listing ship and rescued the men without injuries.

The St. Nicholas today was still battling heaving seas about 300 miles east of Cape Race, Nfld.

The 7,151-ton Alendi Hill, a British freighter en route to Hampton Roads, Va., is further at sea and Thursday night reported she was "barely holding her own."

She will call at Halifax to take on fuel.

In the Gulf of St. Lawrence, the rudderless Canadian Pacific ship Beaverbrae is riding out the storm with two Halifax tugs. The ship reported she was in no danger Thursday night and when winds moderate, the tugs Foundation Vera and Foundation Josephine II will continue towing her to Halifax.

Angered General Makes Bitter Counter-Attack

By MERRIMAN SMITH

EN ROUTE WITH EISENHOWER, Oct. 31 (UP)—A tired but increasingly confident Dwight D. Eisenhower made a last-hour plane trip to Illinois today in a move to take 27 home-state electoral votes from Governor Adlai E. Stevenson, his Democratic opponent.

The Republican presidential candidate seemed to be driving harder than at any time since his nomination and he appeared more robust than many of the younger aides in his campaign party.

Eisenhower, smiling often but he was bitter when he told a rally at Madison Square Garden this was "the most scurrilous campaign in American political history."

He said President Truman and other opponents had turned against him when they realized the Republican Party had not been split by his nomination.

He said Nazi propaganda Joseph Goebbels and Nazi Jew-baiter Julius Streicher "had done quite a job on me for a number of years" and Soviet writer Ilya Ehrenburg and "the poison pen lists on Pravda have been working on me for quite a spell."

"I have been worked over by experts," Eisenhower said. "But until our success in this campaign drove our opponents to desperation, no one had ever engaged in such unrestrained slander as to charge I would trim my principles to run for office."

"I have made no deals in this campaign," Eisenhower said. "No one has a claim on me. No one has a promise from me. No one has captured me. I am my own man."

On the other hand, he said, the Democrats had wanted him to become "their man" in 1948.

DENIES CHANGE

"They thought I might be the man to defend governmental corruption, excuse their coddling of Communists and apologize for the vacillating policies which have caught us in an inflation at home and a war abroad," he said.

"How could they dare think I was their man?"

Eisenhower seemed particularly angered by the introduction of racial issues in the campaign. He said veteran correspondents had written that "our opponents in this election have reached a record low in mud-slinging, distortion, vilification and character assassination."

Eisenhower said men who wanted him to return from Europe to campaign for the Republican nomination knew he would not turn in his uniform and then compromise his principles.

UNIFIED PARTY

"So I devoted myself to the job of unifying my party and drawing into that all—all of our people," he said. "I already had had some experience in such an enterprise. To win the war against Hitler, it was necessary to unify elements and views even more diverse than those which could be found here."

"And that job was done without my becoming a captive of anybody. This work of unifying my party has been particularly infuriating to our opponents."

"They could beat us if we were divided. They can't beat us united."

POLL-TAKERS WARY

Ike Favorite To Lead in Popular Vote

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—Three of the top political poll-takers say that, as of now, it looks as if Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower will command a slight lead in the popular vote on election day.

But the pollsters—Dr. George Gallup, Archibald M. Crossley and Elmo Roper—say this prediction must be tempered by the question: How fast is Governor Adlai Stevenson catching up?

The consensus of the poll-takers came out Thursday at a meeting of New York chapter of the American Market Association, and the dominant mood of all three of them was: Caution.

They were remembering the way the voters upset their 1948 predictions that Governor Thomas Dewey would beat President Truman.

Although they said they've corrected their methods since then, they still were wary about estimating the outcome.

None was willing, yet, to predict what the electoral vote will be, although all said their latest findings indicate an Eisenhower popular-vote victory.

Crossley said the big headache is the undecided category. He estimated 10 per cent of the voters are in this group.

P.G.E. Marks Completion

The government-owned Pacific Great Eastern Railway Saturday achieves one of the main objectives of its founders by connecting up with the old Grand Trunk Pacific system, now part of the C.N.R., at Prince George.

Last spike in the 82-mile extension from Quesnel to Prince George will be driven by two pioneers Saturday morning in the presence of government, business and civic dignitaries. The ceremony will be recorded by a battery of press and radio representatives.

Thus, the railway that for four decades has been known as the line without a head or tail will have a head, but still no tail. But the tail wags in the distance—the much-discussed southern extension from Squamish to North Vancouver.

Conceived by Foley, Welch and Stewart, the contractors who built the G.T.P., as their own personal venture, the line, owing to the First World War and the difficulty of financing, was taken over by the government in 1917.

SATURDAY MAGAZINE FEATURES U.S. PRESIDENTIAL NOMINEES

Background of the two men from whom the United States will make its choice of president Tuesday is reviewed in a two-page article in the Victoria Daily Times magazine section tomorrow.

The article gives a detailed account of the lives of Democratic lawyer Adlai Stevenson and military leader Republican Dwight E. Eisenhower.

The intimate story of the figures who now hold the world's spotlight starts on the front page, now revised to give more space for features secured for the magazine section, and continues on page 10.

BARTOW, Fla., Oct. 31 (UP)—James (Three-Gun) Hill, self-styled "maniac," and a convicted croony he freed at gunpoint ended a huge posse early today and headed for Georgia, "possibly" with two hostages.

Sheriff Hagan Parrish said Hill commandeered two autos in succession to break through an 85-man dragnet and headed toward Georgia, and "may" have taken with him an elderly couple as his 22nd and 23rd kidnap victims.

U.K. Rejects Peace Plan

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y., Oct. 31 (CP)—Britain Thursday rejected Russia's proposal to set up a new United Nations' commission on Korea but asked for clarification of Soviet views.

Selwyn Lloyd, Britain's minister of state, told the General Assembly's political committee that he wants to hear more about the Soviet position on the key issue of war prisoners, which has deadlocked the Korean truce talks.

Evidently speaking for the West, Lloyd said in a moderately toned address that unless there are clear answers from Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky on the prisoners question, Britain sees no use for a new commission.

Business Faces Human Factor, Labor Doubts Personnel Men

By DON INGHAM

Business realizes that the human problem is the most important, but labor generally is skeptical of personnel efforts by employers, according to P. D. Conroy, labor attaché at the Canadian embassy in Washington, D.C.

Better known as "Pat" Conroy, former miner, Canadian Congress of Labor stalwart, and the man given the most credit for clearing Communist-dominated unions out of the C.C.L., he arrived in Victoria today to address a noon luncheon of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Managers' Association conference here.

"Business, that formerly gave almost its whole attention to production, now realizes that the human problem is the most important," he said. "Since an employer in a large organization cannot handle the job himself, he hires personnel men."

"The average trade unionist looks on the personnel department as a device to split the loyalty of employees toward their unions," he said. "Personnel men, then, must establish a working relationship with unions, and understand the feeling a man has toward his trade union."

He said, however, that labor's skepticism of these processes is part of evolution, and that the time will come when personnel experts will, of necessity, find out what makes employees and their unions "tick."

"These, of course, are generalizations, since many employers want to improve their industrial relations," Mr. Conroy said. "It has been found that the older the union-employer relationship is, the better and more mature are their feelings toward one another. They improve with age."

"Our problem is in the vast, marginal area that has had industrial relations and no feeling of confidence between the two groups," he said.

Speaking with the strong Scottish burr that he brought to Canada years ago from his native Glasgow, Mr. Conroy said that "unless the problems of industrial relationships are solved in Canada, in view of present expansion, they will add up to industrial warfare that will be bad for the whole country."

"They must be on a higher constructive level than at present," he said.

ON THE TIMES

By ART STOTT

Things have been building up on us in our house. The school shift system has done its best to kill parental affection. Sure, we love our children. We're a bit like the Spartan mothers. We present them and say "These are our jewels."

Only after the summer holidays, we'd enjoyed that jewelry so continuously we felt a little over-burdened. We were quite prepared to share the jewels with teachers from 9 to 3. Then the school board stepped in and said "Ungh-ugh, only half a day."

We're just a bit jaded, and not too charitable in our attitude to the sprouts. Children make you that way. God bless 'em.

So Halloween catches us a little liverish. I'm sad about the disinterest that's set in since I enjoyed Halloween with the children. No doubt a guy ought to enter into the spirit of the thing. He ought to bubble over about fire-crackers that just go "spit" or "foo" instead of "bang." He ought to take it in his stride when a sparkler drips hot metal on his hand and raises an immediate blister. He ought to be the soul of enthusiasm when the tikes dress-up in their ghost and goblin rigs and go out to ring door-bells. I wish I were.

No kid should have an old man like me on Halloween. "Taint right. But I've seen too many Halloweens. They've caught me with-out supplies once or twice, when the moppets of the neighborhood have trick-or-treated me and I've had nothing to give them. They've passed without a visitor on other occasions when the hall table's been loaded down with apples and those peculiar sticky clay candies that confectionaries put out in orange and black wrappers under the name of "kisses."

Looking Backwards

Not that I haven't had my Halloween moments. Safe in the dim recesses of memory are recollections that'll stay there. This day of hypersensitivity toward juvenile delinquency is no time to parade them.

And if, on some Halloweens, a former Oak Bay police chief used to call me by name, that didn't prove anything. Nothin' at all, at all. Probably just knew me because I played soccer on a school team, or he might have seen me around the rink on hockey nights.

I guess, though, that I never really was the Halloween type. Putting on a mask or blacking my face with burnt cork didn't add anything to my appearance, and I was too scared to do much if any damage. Just the same, I could run.

Looking back at it, the most lasting impression of Halloween seems to be that weary walk home, when the gang had split up, when the last of the fire crackers had been touched off, when the apples that had been eaten lay a little too heavily on the stomach—and the condition hadn't been improved by furtive cigarettes.

You trudged along in the night that had grown cold. Your feet were hurting a little in your sneakers. The place where the squib had backfired and seared your finger was throbbing, and the guilty knowledge of who'd pushed down the gates and fences in the district was troubling you.

You scuffed along toward home and Halloween was typified by the litter of colored paper where bombs and crackers had been set off under street lights.

Admitting Nothing

You wouldn't admit a sense of let-down. Far from it. You'd assure the family you had a swell time—and maybe you had by shucking a few inhibitions.

Still looking back at it, you'd probably realize you'd tried to carry Halloween along too far. It's a time for small youngsters, up to 10 or 11. And the bonfires some communities arrange for them make sense and give pleasure.

Maybe if a guy had pitched in and helped to organize one, he wouldn't be looking at the whole thing through jaundiced eyes now. It's still a good time for the small kids, but they ought to know when they've ceased to be small.

Songhees Reserve Junkyard Approved

Application of Harry Haigh and Charles Flifton to set up a junkyard on property on the Songhees Reserve was approved by City Council at its meeting Thursday.

The move followed approval of the application by the city building inspector and fire chief, subject to carrying out of building and fire regulations.

The two officials had originally turned the application down on grounds that another junkyard operated by Mr. Haigh was not kept in order. They approved "in the light of new circumstances."

American Interests Exploit Our Resources L.P.P. Leader Charges

The St. Laurent government's foreign policy is dictated by the United States, and Canada will become economically and politically dependent on the U.S., if the government's policy is followed.

This was the message delivered by Tim Buck, head of the Labor Progressive Communist Party in Canada, to 203 persons at a meeting in Victoria Ballroom Thursday evening.

(See Interview, Page 17)

"The United States has only one aim," he said. "It wishes to dominate the world by force. Why should Canada be a sacrificial lamb in this insane drive of the States for war?"

He claimed that Canada is becoming a colony of the United States; that this nation is allowing U.S. interests to take over and exploit her natural resources. He believed that Canadians should manufacture their own goods, instead of exporting raw materials and buying back finished goods.

The meeting was quiet and orderly, except for a short flurry of heckling during the question and answer period, when Mr. Buck dealt with a dozen written queries.

One question asked: "Why don't you and your supporters leave Canada and go to Russia?" Mr. Buck replied: "I am a Canadian, my children were born in Canada, and I intend to stay here and fight against exploitation of Canada."

At the end of the meeting a collection was taken, and Maurice Rush, provincial secretary of the Labor Progressive Party, announced the total as $196.

Mr. Buck is on a coast-to-coast speaking tour.

Australians Flock To Honor Billy Hughes

SYDNEY, Oct. 31 (Reuters).—Australians by the hundreds of thousands thronged the funeral route or clustered around radios today to pay their respects to William Morris Hughes, their First World War premier.

Hughes died Tuesday, aged 88. The funeral service was held in St. Andrew's Anglican cathedral. Pallbearers included Prime Minister Robert G. Menzies and Herbert Evans, leader of the opposition Labor party. Governor-General Sir William McKell represented the Queen.

Drew Urges Canada Mint Gold Coins

WINNIPEG, Oct. 31 (CP).—George Drew Thursday night urged revaluation of gold and the use of it in a Canadian gold coinage as necessary steps for increasing foreign trade and re-establishment of the nation's gold mining industry.

The national Progressive Conservative leader addressed the party's nomination convention, which unanimously chose Gordon M. Churchill, member of parliament for Winnipeg South Centre, as its candidate at the next federal election.

He stressed the need for increased trade and development of the country's resources to provide maximum employment for Canada. He said he hoped Canada would take the lead at next month's Commonwealth conference in London in a move to reopen the normal channels of trade.

For some reason he could never understand, Mr. Drew said, gold, which had long been the primary foundation of financial stability, was supposed to be produced at a cost less than actual cost of production.

Unless a price were fixed at a figure relating to its actual cost plus reasonable profit, he said the gold mining industry, which in previous depression periods had been the country's one stabilizing industry, was in danger of collapse.

"We should establish our own price for gold, and start minting gold coins that we could sell freely to the world."

New Shipment of Arms From Canada to France

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (BUP).—A new shipment of Canadian arms under the North Atlantic Treaty will arrive in France early next month.

Defense Minister Brooke Claxton announced Thursday that the mutual aid shipment, consisting of mortars, ammunition and stores, will leave from Montreal.

Within the last month, Canadian armaments have been sent to Italy, Portugal, Belgium, Norway and The Netherlands—all partners in the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

DID ANDREI CRIB?

W. A. Scott Thinks Soviets Copied His Peace Plans

Russia's Andrei Vishinsky, following the Soviet policy of claiming first in every field, may have cribbed from the platform of an unsuccessful Victoria candidate for the last provincial election, W. A. Scott.

Mr. Scott claims that his peace formula, which called for "humanitarian" generals to meet together on a settlement commission has apparently been copied by the Communists.

Mr. Scott wrote a letter to the Russian delegate Thursday, asking whether he had received a copy of his formula for peace. It had been submitted to Canadian, British, United States, U.S.S.R. and Chinese governments, the United Church, the Vatican and the U.N. on Sept. 4.

Mr. Scott says Mr. Vishinsky embodied his suggestions in the Russian proposal to settle the Korean War.

The Victoria man's plan named Commander Mao Tse Tung of China; Maj. Gen. G. R. Pearkes, V.C. M.P., Nanaimo; General George Marshall, U.S.A., and Field Marshal Bernard Montgomery of Britain as peacemakers.

Mau Mau Murders Another; 227 Arrested in Kenya

NAIROBI, Kenya, Oct. 31 (CP).—Police and military authorities arrested 227 persons today in a new drive to crush Kenya's dreaded Mau Mau, the native secret society pledged to wipe out the white man.

Military units and police fanned out over this British east African colony in another of their counter-offensives. Authorities said the 227 natives were detained for questioning.

The mass round-up came as another murder was blamed on the secret Mau Mau society pledged to drive white settlers from the colony. An African who had given evidence against the Mau Mau was found murdered Thursday night. It was the 47th killing attributed to the secret society.

The arrests today brought the total picked up to 3,911 since the war on the Mau Mau was intensified 10 days ago.

Britain's Colonial Secretary Oliver Lyttelton will start Saturday on a fact-finding tour of the Kikuyu tribal reserves, suspected hotbeds of the anti-white fanatics.

Blanshard-McClure Commercial Zone

Rezoning of an area below the B.C. Power Commission building at Blanshard and McClure from apartment to commercial was approved by City Council Thursday.

A protest from ex-Ald. John Worthington in person and from H. E. Munday and W. C. Merston by letter failed to have the change made to "garage" rather than "commercial."

Mr. Worthington and others petitioned council for the change from apartment to garage of the whole area in the Burdett-McClure-Blanshard-Humboldt section. The matter was referred to the Town Planning Commission.

"They've had 18 months to deal with our petition—why don't they give us all garage zoning and we'd all be happy," said Mr. Worthington. "I could put it through in two days."

Supporting the planners, Ald. William Pinfold said the petition was laid over as council had supported the "no-pinpoint-zoning" recommendation of the T.P.C.

Truman Denies Van Fleet Fired

U.S. General Involved in Political Blast Following Letter Disclosure

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—The debate over sending South Koreans into the line to replace American soldiers in Korea mushroomed like an atomic explosion today, billowing out to Tokyo and Paris.

At its vortex, the heat of the word battle brought a White House denial that Gen. James A. Van Fleet is being relieved as Eighth Army commander and, from secret defense department files, a mass of data showing:

1. Van Fleet's request that South Korean forces be doubled from 10 to 20 divisions—was opposed as premature by Gen. Matthew B. Ridgway, then United Nations commander in Tokyo and now supreme commander of North Atlantic Treaty forces in Paris.
2. Ridgway's position was upheld by the joint chiefs of staff and Defense Secretary Robert Lovett.
3. The defense department says it has been carrying out a long-range program to turn over the defense of Korea to the South Koreans as soon as leaders can be trained and seasoned in combat.
4. Gen. Mark Clark, Ridgway's successor in Tokyo, has pursued this program and has submitted a longer-range proposal for further expansion, now being studied in Washington.

REMOVABLE — The St. Lawrence River's gut dam, blamed for recent destructive high water levels on Lake Ontario, is slated for removal within 2½ months.

The government Thursday awarded a contract for elimination of the 31-year-old dam, a controversial 900-foot structure between two islands below Prescott, Ont. The contract let to the Canadian Dredge and Dock Company of Toronto provides that the dam is to be gone by Jan. 15, 1953.

The announcement followed by one day the International Joint Commission's approval of the Canada-United States application for permission to develop hydro power on the river's International Rapids section as part of the St. Lawrence Seaway.

IF—A Korean lawmaker said today in Pusan Dwight D. Eisenhower would be welcomed as an "honored guest" if the Republican presidential candidate was elected and if:

"... He changes his European first and Asia-second policy."

Yoon Chi Yung, vice-chairman of the National Assembly, has previously expressed opposition to Eisenhower's stated plan to replace American divisions with South Korean troops.

DESTINY — In Brandon, Man., Governor-General Vincent Massey Thursday night said the growth of "a mood of sober confidence which now possesses Canadians," is more important than any immediate material progress the country has made.

He told a civic luncheon at Brandon, he had found the Canada he had left in 1935 hardly exists today. The mood of the country then, he said, was expressed in the words of Author Bruce Hutchison:

"For we are young, my brothers, and full of doubt, and we have listened too long to timid men."

Mr. Massey said Canada did not "stay in that questioning pessimism of the '30's. She rose and went forth to meet her destiny."

Teen-Ager Reported Drunk With Lawyer

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—A teen-aged material witness in New York's vice scandal had her parole revoked Thursday because she allegedly staged a drunken party with her lawyer.

The girl, Pat Ward, 19, burst into tears when ordered to put up a $25,000 bond.

There is no criminal charge against her.

She has been in the custody of her mother as a witness against Minot (Mickey) Jelke, oleomargarine heir accused of running a call girl racket.

Assistant District Attorney Anthony J. Leibler accused her lawyer, former Magistrate J. Roland Sala, of getting her drunk — a charge that Sala loudly denied.

Leibler told Judge Edward J. McCullen Jr.:

"She and Sala spent their time drinking brandy, drinking highballs and, in one instance, she became quite intoxicated, and not only that, Mr. Sala took her to nightclubs a good deal."

"Then he would tell police to stay out of range and he stayed at her apartment until 4, 5 or 6 o'clock in the morning."

Sala said a policewoman was along when he took Miss Ward to a night club to try to catch Martha Raye's act. Miss Ward once served as the comedienne's secretary.

As for visiting her apartment, Sala told the court Miss Ward's mother was always present.

"I am so scrupulous in these cases," Sala continued, "that when I went to see Miss Ward I kept my coat on, I kept my hat on, I kept the door open."

Leibler said Sala's mother was always present.

'LET THEM NOT PUBLISH'

Supreme Court Justice Makes Comment in Suit Against Paper

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (CP)—The Supreme Court of Canada Thursday was asked to award damages to a Vancouver woman for an alleged permanent disability resulting from the reading of a false newspaper report that her estranged husband and three children had been killed in a car-train collision.

The case involves Mrs. Yvonne Guay of Vancouver and the Vancouver Sun. The argument centres on the question of whether Mrs. Guay is entitled to damages. Both parties agree that the report was false. The Sun has said the story was published in good faith.

Sun officials have told lower courts that because of the nine-month lag between publication of the report and the start of the damage action they have been unable to trace the source of the report or the writer of it.

The Supreme Court of British Columbia awarded Mrs. Guay damages of $1,025. The appeal court, in a majority judgment, reversed that decision and Mrs. Guay appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada.

SAME PROTECTION

David L. Silvers of Vancouver represented Mrs. Guay. At one point he was interrupted by Chief Justice Thibault Rinfret who said he does not believe newspapers should be given any greater protection against damage suits than the individual.

"If they don't like it, let them not publish their newspapers and probably the world would be better off."

better off," said the chief justice. Mr. Silvers said that on February 3, 1948, The Sun published a report that Mrs. Guay's husband and three children were killed in a car-train collision in North Bay. The report quoted the victim's sister-in-law, listed at a Vancouver address, as saying she had received word of the accident.

Mr. Silvers said Mrs. Guay had tried unsuccessfully through The Sun to obtain confirmation of the report. She went to the address listed in the report for her husband's sister-in-law and found no such person had ever lived there. It was several weeks before she found out through relatives that the report was false.

Ridicule by Professionals Ends U.K. Square Dance Fad

LONDON, Oct. 31 (Reuters)—Britain's rage for square-dancing appeared today to be skidding down the same road to extinction taken by such earlier fads as jitterbugging, yo-yos and miniatuse golf.

Patrons of the square dance yowled that professionals have killed it through ridicule.

"Square dancing could have brought a much-needed whiff of clear western air into Britain's dance halls," moaned the London publication Dance News. "But it didn't because we laughed it to death."

Professional dancers and stage comedians took advantage of the craze to burlesque it.

The craze swung into high gear last year after newspaper readers saw photos of Queen Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh square dancing during their Canadian tour.

Our Neighbor at the Polls

DESPITE ALL THE CONFUSION and bitterness, the decisive factors in the American election campaign are pretty clear.

The personal factors, to begin with, are more important than usual in this election. On the one side—the well-merited prestige of General Eisenhower will go a long way towards outweighing some of his colleagues' reputations. On the other, Governor Stevenson has emerged in a few months as a major figure in the nation's life, a scholar of politics with something of Woodrow Wilson's touch and an unequalled orator. However the election goes the United States is assured of an able president.

Secondly, the past records of the two parties undoubtedly will be a great factor, perhaps the final factor, in the public's decision.

Mr. Stevenson inherits the great legacy of Roosevelt and President Truman's magnificent courage in foreign affairs, but he also inherits the domestic blunders and the scandals of the present administration.

General Eisenhower, for his part, cannot escape the public's longer memory. It has not forgotten that the Republican party, which now condemns the Democrats' management of foreign policy, first plunged the nation into the fatal policy of isolation, which was one of the primary causes of the Second World War and almost assured the ruin of the free world. The public does not forget either that all the isolationism left in American politics is concentrated in the Republican party, that General Eisenhower's intimate and supporter, Senator Taft, even voted against the North Atlantic Treaty. And finally it is recalled, somewhat unfairly, that the Republican party was in office when the great depression began and failed utterly to grapple with it.

But the important thing to remember in this election is not the personalities or the past but the actual policies that the two parties propose to enforce in the future. Here the confusion becomes bewildering, at least to foreigners.

Two historic facts, however, are established. Both the presidential candidates are pledged without reservation to an internationalist foreign policy. Neither proposes to withdraw the nation from the world. The tragic mistake of 1920 is not to be repeated. And in domestic affairs neither candidate proposes to repeal the social gains of the New Deal which, as General Eisenhower says, has now been absorbed permanently into the social structure.

It may be assumed, therefore, that since both candidates are agreed on basic foreign and domestic policy the result of the election will make little difference one way or the other. Such an assumption is quite wrong.

In an election campaign candidates and parties seldom reveal, if indeed they fully know, the policies that they will follow in office. Only when a government is installed does its real character emerge as it no longer faces the vague generalities of the platform but must face the concrete problems of the day.

It is certain that General Eisenhower and Mr. Stevenson would face them in very different fashions because they have different views on the direction and the momentum of society. At the risk of over-simplification it may be said that Mr. Stevenson not only accepts the Roosevelt revolution but expects to carry it forward. General Eisenhower accepts the revolution but believes that it must be consolidated and absorbed before it is allowed to advance further, that the state should not extend its present intervention in the economy but should at least reduce its gigantic expenditure, which Mr. Stevenson considers unavoidable.

Thus for all their agreement in principle the two candidates would not give the same sort of government by any means. In respect of the Presidency the results of the election are incalculable but there is a still more incalculable factor—the next Congress.

The almost forgotten Congressional election will choose the men who cannot make the President's policy but can destroy it, who cannot control the executive but alone can frame the laws and the budgets which govern him.

Since the next few years will be some of the most critical of modern times the election, for all its confusion, may be judged by its results later on as one of the most important in American history. Those results no man, not even the candidates, can possibly foresee.

More Discussion Needed on Parks

IN OTHER CITIES ON THIS CONTINENT special bodies elected solely to administer parks have proved successful. Their records have persuaded a member of the Victoria city parks committee—a body appointed from the council by the mayor—to advocate a similar system here.

His first recommendation to the council has been rejected but the issue is not dead.

As a means of assuring parks special treatment, continuity of planning and interested and enthusiastic direction, the elected board has many virtues. They have been set forth by proponents of the plan.

There are corresponding disadvantages. In Victoria, for instance, the public two or three years ago endorsed the municipal manager idea for civic administration. One of its purposes was to co-ordinate services, bring them under one head and relate them one to another in such fields as civic finance. An elected parks board—despite the fact that it would depend for its budget on city council approval—would take much of the supervisory powers away from the municipal manager.

When it came to budgeting, the board, predisposed to look favorably on parks, might be expected to seek a larger share of the tax dollar than council members considered reasonable. The mayor and aldermen might still have the final decision on financing, but the board would be in a position to exert unusual pressure even here—if only through the threat of resigning.

Administratively a separate entity for parks could call for its own accounting, and its own negotiations with labor. Conceivably it would require staffs duplicating in part the work of other city office staffs. To avoid that and to come within the municipal manager scheme, the elective board would have to place its own personnel, from the administrator down, under two masters.

Were the elected board extended to cover the metropolitan area, with representatives from all municipalities, it presumably could co-ordinate parks work effectively for the entire community. At the same time, it would virtually remove another department from the direct jurisdiction of the councils.

The proposal deserves further study, with frank discussion of its merits and demerits. But in any discussions that may take place, the mistakes of past parks committees cannot be presented as proof positive of the need for an elected parks board. Elected parks boards are not immune to error.

Franco Misses the Point

GENERALISSIMO FRANCISCO Franco, the diminutive dictator of Spain, has told a meeting of his Falangists in Madrid that his form of defense against communism is better than that of the western democracies. The latter he describes as the "inoperative liberal doctrines of the old nations."

If there is truth in the adage "set a thief to catch a thief" perhaps there may be merit in the Franco approach. The way proposed by the Spanish dictator is simply to set one form of totalitarianism against another. For Franco that may be adequate. But not for the west. Such a course, as the democracies clearly see, would be capitulation to the enemy—since it would merely be substitution of one type of dictatorship for another. That is the point Franco has missed. He has regimented his people, and now claims this as a defense against regimentation. The autocracy of Madrid is perhaps less virulent than that of Moscow, but it is basically similar. The Fuehrer system is dominant.

The truth is, the "old nations" are operating on a much newer principle than is Franco or the ideology he is fighting. Fascism and communism are the retrogressive forms; democracy is the advance to something better.

And the liberal doctrines are not "inoperative," as Franco so blandly assumes. They have formed, and are continuing to form, an active defense against communist encroachment—as witness the North Atlantic Treaty, western European rearmament and other developments—that is immeasurably more effective than Spain's adventures in totalitarianism.

A Head Too Full for Happiness

THERE IS SOMETHING CHILLING in the story of Bill Penney. Up to a few months ago his friends knew Bill as a happy-go-lucky, normal human being enjoying his weekly golf game and his lunch with a bottle of cider at the village inn.

Then Bill Penney, Dr. William Penney, O.B.E., D.Sc., Ph.D., M.A., F.R.S., went to Australia to plan and supervise the explosion of Britain's first atomic bomb.

Now he is back in Britain, but it is a different life for him. He knows so much about that explosion, his mind is the repository of so many secret facts, that he cannot be allowed to follow his former existence. He's top priority on the security listing. He's isolated and guarded, a victim of intellectual atomic radiation.

Uneasy lies the body that wears his head.

HERE it is Halloween, yet I can't think of a proper greeting for you. We have too few specialized and seasonable greetings for our various feasts. Christmas is Merry, and New Year is Happy. Easter is Happy, too, and so are birthdays. . . not enough variety even there. Quoting Swinburne, I once wished a man "Brief—Thanksgiving!" I thought this very suitable. He thought me very suitable too. . . suitable for a nut college. I don't want to wish you a Wholesome Halloween. That's not what we're here for. A wholesome Halloween would be as frustrating and paradoxical as a sane Halloween. . . if you're sane you don't have Halloween at all, and if you have Halloween you have turned your back on Kant's Critique of Pure Reason. Which is a good enough thing to turn your back on.

I have never read more than a few pages of Kant. Though I have read more than Sir J. C. Squire has done. . . he uses the first page to put himself to sleep with. He knows the first page better than any man who ever lived, but he has never got to the second page. But without knowing Kant, I am able to side with Belloc, who hasn't read him either, in spite of being over 80 now. A young man was furious with Belloc for damning Kant without reading him, and asked how the devil he could presume to judge without reading. Belloc won this argument by a knockout. He said he could easily judge Kant by the people who reverence him.

So for Kant's connection with Halloween. Unless you care to dress yourself up as Kant himself tonight. You might scare the kids, and this would do you good, and them too. Though when I frightened one kid a few Halloweens ago, he fell backwards down the brick steps of our front porch, and he claimed this did him no good whatever. Of course, he was prejudiced, and looked at the case too subjectively.

During his lifetime, my father had a good deal to do with the International Geological Congress. One of his nastiest jobs was having to explain to his German friends and colleagues, before the Brussels meeting just after the 1914 war, that Germans would not be welcome in Belgium for a while yet. One of his most pleasant jobs was to be the chief host and organizer for the meeting in Canada just before that war. . . 1913, I think. The foreign delegates were taken on a very complete tour of Canada, which is, as you know, quite a large country to make a complete tour of. The tour was so complicated that the railways said it simply couldn't be done, so my father and the late Pete Leroy of the Survey arranged the timetables themselves and showed the railways how the transportation business is run.

Canada didn't print special postage stamps to honor the delegates, as Algeria did this year. . . and what beautiful stamps the Algerian ones are. . . they mean most stamps look dull and cheap. But we showed the visitors a wonderful time. Two tiny pleasure vessels were taken down the Lachine Rapids on the St. Lawrence, to thrill the chaps, and she holed herself on a rock. The skipper told my father he thought he could make Montreal before she sank, so they didn't tell anyone but just cruised merrily down stream, getting lower and lower in the water. They tied up at Montreal, pushed everyone hurriedly onto the dock and around the corner of a shed, and the little ship didn't sink till the last guest was out of sight. Nice timing.

The sick and failing Princess Maquinn was brand new that year, and the Congress was allowed a trip to Alaska in her before she made her first workaday run. She struck on a rocky shore of a mountain which rises the best part of four miles straight out of the sea. (It isn't on regular tourist routes, alas.) Luckily it was at low tide. While waiting for high water to float her off, the skipper and my father told the guests the story of Toronto that painted a picture. The professor was put to work, inserting finishing touches until the tide had done its own work, and the guests never knew that Alaska had detained them so forcibly.

RE the letter by Alice Cressal in which she states "that the Social Credit government is being roundly belabored by supposedly Christian people because of a policy acknowledging the Bible as their chart and compass to institute Divine principles."

May I say to this lady, no one is condemning the Social Credit government because they acknowledge the Bible. However, all Christian people have a right to be indignant and to condemn this holier than thou attitude of Social Crediters, including ministers of the Social Credit government, that they are the only party whose principles are founded on Christianity.

No actual redistribution has been made, involving any loss to the two cent.

As much as the appointment of two cabinet ministers to represent B.C. in the federal cabinet is to be applauded it cannot be said fairly that this has been done in recognition of any recent development of the province as some newspapers have stated or inferred.

The Prime Minister himself in making the announcement did so with the air of making the discovery after his recent visit that B.C. was now at last entitled to more representation than it had heretofore enjoyed.

It will be recalled that under Conservative administration the rule was for many years that we have two, the Hon. H. H. Stevens and the late Simon Tolmie being respectively ministers of trade and commerce and agriculture.

A further comment is relevant: that to give us a second minister the size of the cabinet has been increased. Mr. Campney filling the long vacant and apparently unnecessary portfolio of Solicitor-General.

No actual redistribution has been made, involving any loss to the two cent.

BEER INGREDIENTS
In reply to "Brewery Worker," I can assure him with all sincerity, at no period was I laboring under the delusion the dandelion or a pill was the only ingredient used in brewing the concoction.

While it is true one is not endowed with the technique and the fine arts of brewing beer, nevertheless one is endowed with an organ, by the law of nature, commonly known as a palate. Therefore it is not essential for one to visit the place of manufacture of the product in order to obtain an inkling of the ingredients placed therein.

In my humble opinion, now the government has gone to the expense of setting up a commission to inquire into the liquor question it should broaden its scope of inquiry by investigation whether there is such a thing as a combine of breweries, manufacturers of wine, etc., within the confines of British Columbia. On numerous occasions in the past I have heard several complaints to this effect.

CABINET APPOINTMENTS
As much as the appointment of two cabinet ministers to represent B.C. in the federal cabinet is to be applauded it cannot be said fairly that this has been done in recognition of any recent development of the province as some newspapers have stated or inferred.

All through the election, and up to date, these sanctimonious prophets have been telling the people how evil, dishonest and un-Christian the members of the former government were. Incidentally, one former minister has now passed on. This minister gave a great deal of public service to the province with little thanks.

You see, Alice Cressal, there are many fine Christian people in all parties. There are also some who may be a detriment to their party—even the Social Credit party.

Tough for The Winner

By WALTER LIPPMANN
From Washington

GEN. Eisenhower's speech at the Herald Tribune Forum will probably be quoted oftener after the election than anything he has yet said during the campaign. That is because he addressed himself to what are almost certainly the crucial problems of the next administration—namely how the non-Communist world can become solvent and self-supporting. The speech was a heavy and far-reaching commitment by the General himself that he will look for the solution of these problems by the method of co-operation with America's allies, refusing on the one hand to abandon them to their own devices and, on the other, refusing to dictate our own solutions to them.

The speech will be quoted again and again because it contained pledges on the very issues that will be most difficult and contentious—on the future of West Germany and Japan between the Soviet orbit and the Western world, on the imbalance between the dollar area and the sterling area, and on the rebellion of the underdeveloped peoples.

The speech began with a recognition of the fact that the New York Herald Tribune was the first big newspaper to declare for Eisenhower. There is no doubt at all that the intent and purpose of the pledges in the speech were to re-align Gen. Eisenhower with his original supporters.

What are they to make of it? For my own part what I make of it is approximately this: One, that Gen. Eisenhower is not, as we hoped last winter that he would be, the effective leader of his party; and two, that in spite of his embarrassing and even humiliating acts of appeasement, he is not the captive and the puppet of the Republican Old Guard; and third, that his allegiance is still with his original supporters.

If this is correct, then in the controversies with the isolationists and the reactionaries of the Republican party, which are almost certainly unavoidable if the commitments of this speech are to be carried out, the General is now heavily and specifically committed. What this promises is that the great controversies over policy will be resolved within the Republican party if Eisenhower is elected. The two wings of the Democratic party will in that event exercise influence but they will not have the decisive power or bear the ultimate responsibility.

DEEPLY DIVIDED
The questions on which Gen. Eisenhower made his personal commitments on Tuesday evening are the questions on which the Republican party has long been most deeply divided. It is not deeply divided on military questions, on the problems of military security, even on the question of our military alliances. Here the old controversies between the so-called isolationists and the so-called internationalists no longer have much reality.

The difficult questions are in the field of economics—of finance, trade, foreign development and the like. It is on precisely these questions that Gen. Eisenhower's personal commitment is now most sharply differentiated from the traditional policy of the Republican Old Guard.

This portends a very stormy administration if Eisenhower is elected. Moreover, the field in which he will be operating is one with which he is unfamiliar, and thus peculiarly dependent upon the quality and the reliability of his advisers.

But so also, if he is elected, is Gov. Stevenson. For he will, of course, be confronted with the same problems. But there will be one important difference in his case.

For Eisenhower the controversy over these issues will be fought out within the Republican party with, however, the certainty of very considerable Democratic support. But for Stevenson the controversies will be fought out between the parties; and if Eisenhower is defeated, the Republican opposition in Congress will be wholly and irreconcilably the Old Guard. The chances of Stevenson's being paralyzed or defeated seem to be very great.

Ups and Downs

By BRIAN TOBIN

"THERE is much," said the Elevator Man, "to be said for the Russian system of elections, as far as getting them over and done with is concerned. Of course, in other respects, the less said the better. But they certainly are efficient—nobody needs to worry about whom to elect. You just say 'yes' to the list the government gives you, and that's that. Neat and tidy and all wrapped up—and as efficient as a morgue. But now somebody has come up with a new wrinkle on this side of the world, and it may make democracy as efficient as communism in elections. This expert has found that in the last 60 years, in 93 per cent of the presidential elections the man with the longer name won. So today he picks Eisenhower, with 10 letters, to beat Stevenson, with nine. Going up!"

"With a system like that," said the Elevator Man, "think what a lot of bother you could avoid. All you'd need to do would be pick a candidate with a longer name than the opposition and victory would be assured. You wouldn't have to go through all the trouble of campaigning or going to the polls. The short-name party, who obviously would have put up their man at an earlier date than the others, would concede defeat and the whole thing would be over. What chance would Taft have in a deal like that? Where would Drew be against St. Laurent? Solon Low might as well give up any idea of ever being Prime Minister. The man to back would be that ancient Japanese statesman Teckytecky-notekysurambasotagatunaham e t a e huzwangchuzwoifshimanduske. He'd be a winner in any election anywhere. Lower main!"

"One thing," said the Elevator Man, "it'd be much easier to count the letters in a name than a lot of votes, and unless the candidate stuttered there'd be no spoiled ballots."

'HEART' FOR CURE

Sister Flies Aid To Stricken Airman

WINNIPEG, Man., Oct. 31 (BUP)—Immoblized by spinal tuberculosis, a 19-year-old Belgian airman lay strapped to a board on a hospital cot today as the Royal Canadian Air Force flew a sister to his bedside to give him "new heart" in his struggle against the disease.

"He has to get well because he's too young to die," Mrs. Carl Wyckman, attractive sister of Sgt. Cadet Louis Lybaert, said Thursday night in Montreal as she neared the end of a 3,000-mile mercy flight.

"I will give him new heart," she said.

GOOSE BAY, Labrador and Montreal, the air force was spreading its wings of mercy to rush Mrs. Wyckman to her brother's bedside. She was expected to reach here tonight.

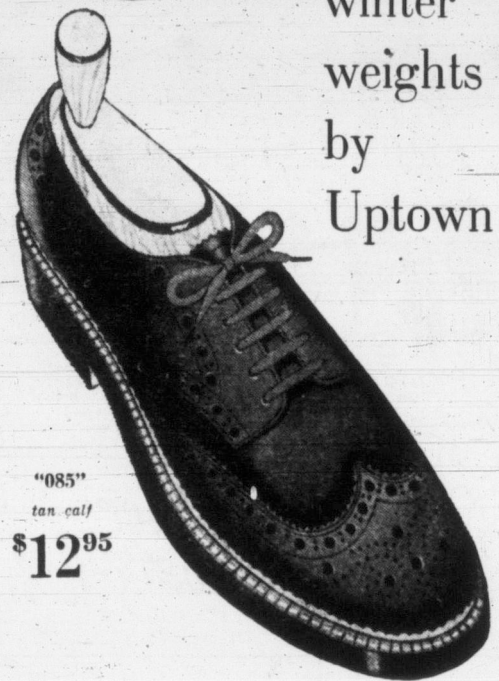

The N.A.T.O. airman, who came to Canada a year ago for a navigation course, developed spinal tuberculosis after a flying accident. At the beginning of September, he no longer had the strength to write his family in Mechelen and frantic letters brought reply of his serious condition.

Mrs. Wyckman went to the Canadian embassy in Brussels and the R.C.A.F. began planning the mercy flight. She was placed aboard a North Star at the North Luffenham fighter base and dispatched early Thursday.

"With one of the family at his bedside he will take new heart in his struggle," the attractive sister said. "I will give him some Belgian cooking. This food our Canadians eat is too sweet for the tongue."

WORD GETS AROUND

Wrens have been summering at St. Andrew's Episcopal Church in Allegan, Mich., for "as long as most folks can remember," according to 70-year-old Carlton Wolfert, who says one of the reasons for the birds' annual visits "might be the peanut butter and bread diet" fed by church officials.

Overseas Duty Planned For R.C.A.F. Airwomen

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (BUP)—Some of the R.C.A.F.'s 2,800 airwomen will be sent overseas within the next few months, headquarters spokesmen said today. The airwomen will be posted to bases of the R.C.A.F.'s fighter wings assigned to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

The R.C.A.F. at present has two fighter wings in Europe, composed of six Sabrejet squadrons. One wing is based at North Luffenham, England, the other near Metz, France.

Officials said the airwomen would be sent overseas on a voluntary basis. On receiving a European posting, they may accept or reject it.

The airwomen's length of overseas service, when exactly they will leave, and how many will be sent, has not yet been decided, R.C.A.F. officials said.

A large number of R.C.A.F. women's division were stationed in the United Kingdom during the Second World War. The women going to join the N.A.T.O. fighter wings will be employed in the same kind of jobs held by their wartime predecessors—as telecommunication operators, clerks, and in similar duties.

Rotary Makes Annual Child's Garden Awards

Three Youngsters Are Repeaters

Neither a bald head or a grey one was to be seen at the front tables of the Thursday Rotary Club luncheon meeting.

This departure from the usual came about as the city service club did honor to newly 60 Saanich school children. The spirited youngsters were this year's contestants in the Rotary Club boys' and girls' school garden contest.

The Rotary, in co-operation with the teachers of 12 Saanich schools, provides the young horticulturalists with seed and supervision. The youngsters are asked to grow six different vegetables and the girls must carry four of the harvested varieties. Results are judged at the Saanich fall fair. For 30 years Rotary has rewarded the group with cups and individual prizes.

INDIVIDUAL TROPHY

Marca Wilson also carried home the trophy for highest individual marks. The cup for the school with the highest total score went to Patricia Bay School, and the cup for the best fair exhibit was won by the Cordova Bay School.

Yvonne Loundes, Marca Wilson and David Johnson were also among last year's winners.

Rotarian J. C. Nimmo acted as chairman of the agriculture committee. John Tribe was secretary.

Presentations were also made to three ladies who assisted in the project, Mrs. Nova Graham, Miss A. Leask and Miss Willa Reid.

E. W. White, horticultural supervisor of the B.C. department of agriculture, was also honored by the committee. Mr. White has long been associated with the annual competition and now is retiring from the department. Grateful Rotarians presented him with a chime clock radio.

Town Planning Talks Date Set by Council

Establishment of a permanent planning board, costs to be shared by all municipalities, was recommended by the Wilson report.

Keep Fireworks Out of Pockets Advises Lad Who Suffered

"Fellows, if you carry fireworks around for Friday night's Halloween celebrations, for gosh sakes don't keep them in your pockets."

This is the sincere advice of 15-year-old Ron Steele, 450 Kingston, a Victoria High School student, who still has memories of the two-month stay he had in St. Joseph's Hospital last fall as result of carrying fireworks in his pockets.

Ron had a pocket crammed with firecrackers and bombs and the live "punk" he was using happened to contact the wick of one of the fireworks sticking out of the pocket. The resultant fireworks caused a third-degree burn to the outside of his upper leg—and a two-month hospital stay. Skin had to be grafted from the left upper leg to repair the damage done to the other limb.

Steele also urges "don't throw fireworks at other people." This plea comes because a neighboring patient in the same hospital last year was another Halloween casualty. Someone threw a firecracker which entered the other boy's pocket—also filled with fireworks—to cause serious burns. Ronnie said the other boy was Larry Todd, of Marigold.

These two examples are proof that fireworks can be dangerous and children using them Halloween night are urged to pay attention so that they or other innocent parties will not become casualties.

Police departments of the Greater Victoria area will be out in full strength during the celebration period, and will take strong action against all caught creating willful damage.

"We don't want to be kill-joys. We would like to see the kids have a good time, but will not tolerate acts of deliberate damage to property," said Chief of Police John Blackstock of Victoria today.

He said that those caught doing willful damage will be dealt with by the courts.

"All our men on foot will be on duty and every piece of rolling stock will be in action to give every area of the city coverage," Chief Blackstock said.

He urges parents to drill into their children to refrain from doing damage to property.

Queen's Shoemaker on Canadian Tour

Edward Rayne, left, famed British shoemaker, whose family has been fitting royal feet with shoes for generations, displays his latest styles of "coronation footwear" in Montreal and Toronto in an effort to attract Canadian buyers, Rayne maintained a hush-hush attitude when questioned as to shoe-size of Queen Elizabeth, but admitted his firm designed the shoes at right worn by Elizabeth on her Canadian tour, that lifted feminine eyebrows. It was the famed business-like tied brogue with the scalloped trim.

New Anti-Combines Organization Goes Into Operation Tomorrow

OTTAWA, Oct. 31 (CP).—The Canadian government's new anti-combines organization goes into operation Saturday with a new approach to the whole system of combines investigation. It will provide a "second chance" for companies and individuals accused of breaking the law to defend their actions before a report on the alleged combine goes to Justice Minister Garson. Under the old system, Combines Commissioner T. D. Macdonald maintained the roles of detective, prosecuting attorney and judge. He had the power to make an inquiry into an alleged price-fixing or monopoly operation, to judge whether the law had been broken and to place a charge in the form of a report before Justice Minister Garson. Under the new set-up, he maintains his function as detective and prosecuting attorney but is stripped of his powers of judge. This now passes into the hands of the commission. This will give the accused a second chance to defend their actions. It will be up to the commission to judge whether a case warrants reporting to the minister or whether it should be quashed. It still will be up to the minister to decide whether court action should be launched.

Council Approves Subdivision Plan

Approval for subdivision plans in the Gonzales and Chandler Avenue area, which will provide some 60 residential lots, was given by City Council at its meeting Thursday.

Ald. Arthur Dowell, chairman of lands committee, urged development of the lots on Gonzales first, stating it was an excellent residential site.

"I would recommend that we urge the 1953 council to cut Richardson Street through from St. Charles to the Oak Bay boundary," the alderman said.

"It will open up another new development and take the traffic load off Fort Street and Fairfield Road."

Subdivision plans call for a new park in Pemberton Woods and a referendum will go to the electorate in December for permission to cancel out a portion of the present park area.

By ROY THORSEN

A Victoria hunter has lost his firearms license as a result of a recent accidental shooting mishap on Salt Spring Island.

Inspector George Stevenson, chief of the B.C. Game Department for the island division, reported today that Phillip John Dawes, 968 North Park Street, had had his license cancelled indefinitely by the B.C. Game Commission.

This action followed the wounding of Walter Jameson, 42, of 2612 Doncaster, a naval veteran of the Second World War, Oct. 12 on Salt Spring Island.

Insp. Stevenson said all the circumstances in the case had been reviewed in interviews with the trio on the hunting trip. While total details were not revealed by the inspector, it was disclosed that Dawes' rifle discharged while Jameson was entering the cabin door, the bullet entering Jameson's right leg above the knee. Discharge apparently occurred while Jameson was pumping out the second shell.

Dawes' license has been cancelled for the duration of the current hunting season. His case will be reviewed later.

Since the second fatal shooting accident on Salt Spring this hunting season—Richard Lakes, 13, of Vancouver, died Wednesday as a result of wounds inflicted by his own rifle—inquiries have reached us as to regulations in regard to youngsters handling firearms.

We checked with Don Kiers of the Elliott Street B.C. Game Office on this.

He reported that youths between the age of 14 and 18 must have the permission of parents or guardian, in writing, before a license will be granted by the office.

Youths under the age of 14, however, must get permission of the R.C.M.P. and the written permission of the parents or guardian before the game department will grant a license.

Sam Lane and brother-in-law, Sam Owen, of Victoria, reeled in six coho beauties in Cowichan Bay, Wednesday. . . . Nice fresh run of coho, reported Lane. Their catch went from over 17 pounds down to 14. They were using a dark blue and white bucktail.

Saanich Inlet is full of grise (all nice size) for those who want them.

"Even if you don't want to catch 'em, go out and see them boiling up the water off Bamberton and Whittaker's Point," suggests Stan Williams.

All local sportsmen's clubs are now laying plans for annual Christmas turkey shoots. . . . Victoria Gun Club's Christmas public shoot will be at the Albert Head Road ground Dec. 14.

Rangers will hold their big yuletide shoot (for Rangers only) Dec. 21 at their Lutton grounds.

Bill Johnston tells us that the Duncan Elks Club has a wide open invitation to all island trap shooters to attend their turkey and ham shoot this Sunday at the club grounds, off Cowichan Lake Road. Shooting will start at 12 noon.

Shawnigan Lake is coming on in the trout fishing picture. Trollers are doing well throughout the day. Some fly fishermen are getting results. . . . Jack Harris tells us that people are now catching trout at Kemp Lake, Sooke. . . . Lower Campbell Lake is considered a trout fishing "hot spot" at this time.

Rod Smith reeled in five nice trout at Kemp Lake one day this week. He was using dry fly. . . . Our sporting goods store man, Johnston (the younger), reeled in a 16½-pound coho off Bamberton, Saanich Inlet, this week.

Sunrise and sunset times from Saturday to Nov. 8.

Nov. 1, 7:01 a.m. and 4:54 p.m.; Nov. 2, 7:02 a.m., 4:52 p.m.; Nov. 3, 7:04 a.m., 4:51 p.m.; Nov. 4, 7:06 a.m., 4:50 p.m.; Nov. 5, 7:07 a.m., 4:48 p.m.; Nov. 6, 7:09 a.m., 4:46 p.m.; Nov. 7, 7:10 a.m., 4:45 p.m.; Nov. 8, 7:11 a.m., 4:44 p.m.

Green Cabbies Red Hot Minor Soccer Prospect

By RAY SIDAWAY

Black & White Taxi are improving the old adage that it takes experience to make a good soccer team.

Only one member of the team has ever played city league soccer before, the rest of the team having played only on school teams.

Despite this inexperienced line-up, the taximen are at present in a first-place deadlock with Eagles in the Lower Island Junior and Juvenile Football Association's fourth division.

Coach Ken Sneddon feels he has a top-notch club that will give any comers a stiff battle for their money. One player, Garry Cooper, he feels, will go a long way in the soccer world.

"He has all the makings of a good soccer player," Sneddon said.

Sneddon will not make any promises about the playoffs except that he expects the cabmen to be in them.

"If we—and I think we will—get in the playoffs, we will probably meet Eagles and the series would be a tough one. All teams in this league are evenly matched and any one of them could carry off the championship."

Team members include Dick Austin, Harvey Chapman, Garry Cooper, Bruce Liddell, Frank Ovey, Craig Reynolds, Dave Ringland, Teddy Stephens, Jim Sneddon, George Vickery, Brian Vest-rup, Michael White, and Garry Leibel.

The taximen will meet Eagles Saturday to decide the league leadership.

Sugar Ray Not Ready to Quit Boxing Yet

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson's manager said Thursday he is sure the middleweight champion will fight again.

"You're going to see Robinson fight again," said George Gainsford, "and I don't mean a year from now either."

Gainsford said February would be a good guess, giving the champ about six weeks to get ready.

Gainsford conferred with Robinson, who is making his debut Nov. 7 as a song and dance man at a night club here, and then held a meeting with Jim Norris, International Boxing Club president.

"He can do his dancing between fights," said Gainsford. "It will give him something to do between fights. I told Ray 'Let's forget about retiring.' He's always followed my advice so far, hasn't he?"

TAKES BOWS AND MONEY

Why Shouldn't We'll Be Proud?

By GAYLE TALBOT

NEW YORK, Oct. 31 (AP)—These are long and wonderful days and nights for Rocky Marciano, the shoemaker's son from Brockton, Mass., who knocked out Jersey Joe Walcott just over a month ago to win the heavyweight championship of the world.

They are fully as long and pleasure-filled for Al Weill, the colorful Broadway character who plotted Rocky's course to riches with one hand, his left, while with the other he held a strange grip on the fight game as matchmaker for the all-powerful International Boxing Club.

It was a clever piece of business in every respect, and Al is proud and happy to take both the bows and the money piling up at an alarming rate.

Asked if he had any slight misgivings about Rocky's return date with Walcott next spring, either here or at Chicago, Al said positively not.

"I'll tell you why," he said. "That night Walcott was in the greatest condition of his life. He can't ever be that good again. He dealt Rocky a lot of punishment yet he kid still had enough left to knock him cold in the 13th round. Rocky will get him a lot quicker the next time."

"Another thing, the next one won't be held at Philadelphia. We had too much against us down there."

WORDS OF ADVICE
"When Rocky came to the corner after the 12th I leaned over him and I said 'Rock, you're in trouble. You're behind, and you might never get another chance if you don't knock him out now. Rocky looked up at me and said 'Is that true, Al?' And I told him it was. Well, you saw what happened. Forty-five seconds and he landed as sweet a short right as I ever saw. They knew he had a left hook, but they didn't know about the short right."

ABOUT EZZARD
How about Ezzard Charles? Had he and Rocky taken on added respect for the former champion since watching him hammer-up Cesar Brion in the Garden last week?

"Well," Al said after some thought, "We might be fighting him some time, and I make a point never to criticize a future opponent. That's not good for business. But I'll say this about Charles' new style—this crowding in and punching all the time—every fighter is born with a style or he isn't born with it, and he can't change to some other style."

CAGE NOTICE
All members of the Veterans of France senior B basketball team are asked to be at City Hall at 7:15 Saturday night for transportation. The team is playing Nanaimo's senior A basketball team in Nanaimo.

WATERVILLE Mr. Larry Griffin, 144, Lewiston, Me., stopped Evan Roy, 143, Old Town, 16.

LEAFS ON TV
TORONTO, Oct. 31 (BUP)—TV fans in Toronto will see N.H.L. hockey for the first time Saturday night. The Boston-Toronto game will be telecast over C.B.L.T.

BRECHEN TO BROWNS
ST. LOUIS, Oct. 31 (AP)—Harry (The Cat) Brechen, veteran left-handed pitcher, Thursday signed a contract with St. Louis Browns after being given his unconditional release earlier by the neighboring Cardinals.

HEY, WALLY! ARE THE BOYS TAKING THEIR SHIN PADS?
VANCOUVER, Oct. 31 (CP)—The Victoria United soccer squad is promised a hot reception when they meet North Shore United in a Coast Soccer League game here Saturday.

Jimmy Spencer, manager of the North Shore team, says his club's last visit to the Island city "was one of the roughest games I've participated in in many years, and what's more, a few of the boys are still carrying scars from that battle."

"You can rest assured things will be different Saturday," Spencer said, "and if Milligan's boys want to play it rough, so can we."

Elderly Workers Need Understanding Bosses

Employers should approach the elderly employee problem in a "warmer, wider and more human" manner, Mrs. Nancy Hodges, M.L.A. for Victoria, told the 14th annual conference of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Management Association Thursday.

Mrs. Hodges said she is opposed to forcing a man to quit work when he reaches the age of 65, and a woman at 60.

The speaker noted many benefits employers could derive from elderly workers.

"Surveys have proved that older people have a greater sense of responsibility and stability; turnover among them is far less than among younger persons; and the older person, especially as far as industry is concerned, have an exceptionally low accident rate," Mrs. Hodges declared.

The M.L.A. condemned the present practice of paying women less than men would receive for similar work.

"The job being done, not the sex of the worker, should determine the rate of pay," she said.

Governments as well as businesses are guilty of undervaluing women workers in this respect, Mrs. Hodges contended.

TOPS IN THEIR FIELD

Carrier Salesmen Honored At Times Banquet Party

One hundred and twenty-five Times' carrier boys were feted by the newspaper Thursday night at a banquet party held at the Club Sirocco, to mark the wind-up of the annual sales popularity contest.

The banquet was given for Times' boys who added circulation on their various routes over recent months.

Lloyd Mackie was presented with a $70 cheque during the course of the evening as the best junior salesman on the circulation staff. The cash award was given in lieu of a bicycle as Lloyd won a bicycle in last year's contest.

George Phillion, 14, was awarded $30 for placing second in the contest.

Presentation of prizes was by Times' publisher, Stuart Keate.

The banquet was attended by Stuart Kidd, circulation director for Victoria Press; Roy Comrie, Times' circulation chief; Bruce Hutchison, editor; Brian Tobin and Arthur Stott, assistant editors; Leslie Fox, managing editor; Bill Walker, sports editor and columnist Monte Roberts and his dog Punch.

A special guest was Eddie Dorohoy, coach of the Victoria Cougars, who told the carriers: "I just hope the team does as well this year as you fellows."

TOPAZ PARK GETS PLAYGROUND

Ald. Mulliner Succeeds In Bid for New Centre

Ald. Frank Mulliner wanted a playground developed at Topaz Park and he got it—but not without a fight.

When the finance committee raised to loosen the purse strings of the contingency fund to part with $2,000 the alderman took his problem right to City Council meeting Thursday.

"There are lots of children, lots of houses and the nearest playground a mile away," Ald. Mulliner stated.

Ald. Percy Scurrah took up the refrain.

"This park has been on the agenda for years with nothing done... there is a crying need for a playground. There is none in the north end of the city. It has been neglected for years."

Ald. Margaret Christie said if the $2,000 was released for grading now, the ground could be seeded in the spring.

Ald. William Pinfold and Ald. Waldo Skilling outlined finance committee's views. They contended council set the "economy" policy and could see no point in reversing the policy at the tag end of the year.

U.S. VOTE EXPECTED TO BREAK RECORDS

Between 55 to 60 Million Citizens Carry Fates of Eisenhower, Stevenson on Ballots

(Compiled From U.P. Dispatches)

Tuesday's U.S. election will climax a once-in-four-years presidential campaign expected to break all previous records for political expenditures and number of votes.

Between 55,000,000 and 60,000,000 voters in the 48 states are expected to cast the ballots which will elect Gov. Adlai E. Stevenson, the Democratic presidential nominee, or Dwight D. Eisenhower, the Republican candidate.

Except during the 1947-49 Congress, the Democrats have controlled the House since 1931 and the Senate since 1933. The present House line-up is 231 Democrats, 200 Republicans, and one independent. Four seats are vacant. In the Senate, there are now 49 Democrats and 47 Republicans.

Control of both Houses of Congress normally goes to the party electing a president. This pattern has not been broken for the House since 1876 and for the Senate since 1884.

If the presidential election is close, however, the Democrats are conceded a good chance of retaining control of the Senate, whoever wins the presidency.

In addition to electing a president the balloting Tuesday will accomplish these things:

1. ELECT 432 MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

All 435 members of the House of Representatives are elected this year for two-year terms. Because Maine held its congressional election September 8, when it elected three Republicans, only 432 seats will be at stake Tuesday.

2. ELECT 34 SENATORS

Senators are elected for six-year terms. The terms of the 96 senators are staggered so that terms of 32 expire each two years. But with elections to fill unexpired terms resulting from deaths, 35 senators are being elected this year. Maine elected a Republican September 8, leaving 34 seats to be filled Tuesday. To win control of Congress, a political party must win 218 of the 435 House seats and 49 of the 96 Senate seats.

Of the 34 Senate seats at stake, 20 now are held by Republicans and 14 by Democrats. Five of the Democrats are southerners.

German Students On Inaugural Flight

MONTREAL, Oct. 31 (EUP)—A North Star aircraft and its pilot became the witch and her broom today as two 18-year-old German students completed a Halloween ride through the sky that marked Canada's first direct air link with Germany.

The Trans-Canada Airlines plane landed at Dorval Airport from Dusseldorf at 2 a.m. EST to inaugurate the first west-east leg of Canada's latest venture in commercial aviation. The inaugural flight of the east-west leg will be made Wednesday. Rita Steiner and Reinhard Dolgner won the "Halloween ride" aboard the plane in a Dusseldorf essay contest on the theme, "Why I Like Canada." They were to lunch with Canadian students today and attend a Halloween dance tonight. The students also were to see Saturday night's National Hockey League game in Toronto between the Maple Leafs and the Boston Bruins and visit Niagara Falls and Ottawa before returning to their homeland Wednesday. A group of eight German journalists made the flight and

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

My favorite wife, who is rather outspoken at times, accompanied me to the Tim Buck meeting last night and wanted the report in the paper to read as follows:

"Out of a population of 104,000, Victoria produced 203 adults and two children who listened to Tim Buck expound his and Russia's theory that Canada's only salvation is immediate war with the United States."

Of course, I had to explain to her that newspapermen aren't allowed to write slanted reports of meetings, so HER type of report would never get in the paper.

Just the same, though, an exaggerated version such as hers might help drive home to the people of Canada the evil intention of such emissaries of Moscow as Mr. Buck and James Endicott.

I only hope that those who read the printed reports on Communist meetings read attentively to separate the surface statements of "facts" from the facts themselves.

The technique of the "big lie," repeated often and loudly enough, is not exclusive with the late, unlamented Mr. Hitler.

The dog Punch took me to another affair Thursday night, which I enjoyed much more than the Communist gathering.

It was a dinner for winners in the Times' carrier-salesman "popularity contest," and all I can say is, every one of those peppy, intelligent, smart-looking youngsters is mighty popular with me.

One of them, Lloyd Mackey is a pal of mine, who drops into the office occasionally to ask if I won't please put his name in Between Times.

I always said I couldn't do it, unless HE did something to justify it.

So all Lloyd did was go out and win the popularity contest for the second year in a row, and pick up $70 for doing so.

Well, now I can put his name in Between Times:

LLOYD MACKAY

I would like to put it in neon lights.

Lotta Dempsey, who writes for one of the Toronto papers, has found a new use for the folk-song artist, Burl Ives.

She writes: "Mr. Yerke, a Toronto-born theatrical producer in Manhattan, was here to make arrangements for next week's production of Paint Your Wagon With Burl Ives."

WAY TO THE HEART

Homemakers Hear How To Make Hubby Happy

By DON INGHAM

Every day this week a jolly prairie woman with a big smile, a bigger heart, and a tremendous fund of information on how to keep husbands in line, has been packing the ladies in at Eaton's.

She is Mrs. Alma Andrews, B.A., who is giving what she calls a "post-graduate course in cooking and home-making." The course started Monday, and will continue until Nov. 8.

The auditorium prepared for the school seats 555 people, most of whom are repeaters, and about 300 ladies are turned away every day.

(Note to the ladies—if you want to hear Mrs. Andrews, who is well worth the effort, be at the second floor, T. Eaton Co. Home Furnishings Building, well before 2 p.m.)

Mrs. Andrews and her staff of three—including her husband who looks like Harry S. Truman—do the bulk of their work in the morning, and confine the afternoon to describing products, explaining techniques, and keeping the ladies amused.

For instance: "Men are like worms. They wriggle around in the grass until some chicken grabs them. (Don't roll biscuit dough, but press it out with your hands.)

"There are three kinds of husbands (always mix your pastry dough with your hands—better than with a spoon)—prizes, sur-prizes, and consolation prizes."

"If you flatter a man you frighten him to death, and if you don't you bore him to death (don't leave any cake batter in the dish, girls. That makes the last sliver of the cake that everyone wants)."

Mrs. Andrews had one recipe for baked ham that she heard from a "South'n co'nel" that goes like this:

"The ham is steeped in bourbon for a day, then run on the third day port wine, and finally rye whiskey."

The colonel asked his cook how the recipe appeared to him.

"Dunno about the ham, suh," the dusky chef answered, "but it's got the makin's of a mighty fine gravy."

Mrs. Andrews doesn't really recommend the recipe. She gives away scores that have a more general appeal and are more suited to the average diet.

That's the gist of school a la Andrews—lots of fun, lots of information, plenty of sound instruction, and a stack of tested recipes.

She also drew attention to another part of every meal that is often overlooked.

"We should start at least one meal a day with grace," she said.

"There are millions in the world who do not have what we have, and we should give thanks for it."

Buck Charges U.S. Drags Canada Toward War

By MONTY ROBERTS

A small, quiet-voiced, insignificant-looking man of 62 sat in a room at the Douglas Hotel Thursday, and told reporters that the United States is "insanely driving toward war."

Tim Buck, Canada's No. 1 Communist in terms of long association and intense effort for the party, stayed close to the party line throughout an hour-long exhibition of fast footwork in skating around questions.

But he made no attempt to hide the fact it is Communism, pure and simple, which he is preaching on his coast-to-coast tour.

"The Communist party changed its name to the Labor Progressive Party because the Communist party was outlawed in Canada," he said. "We make no secret of this. What we did was hold a convention at which it was decided that the time had come for a new party of Communists in Canada, and we changed the name because the time had come for a change."

Mr. Buck claims a membership of "between 16,000 and 17,000" for his party, and reports there has been "little increase or decrease" in the past few years.

Asked if J. G. Endicott were a member, Mr. Buck said he was not, but that the Labor Progressive Party had "supported by resolution" Dr. Endicott's charges of germ warfare in Korea.

"His case is incontrovertible," Mr. Buck said. "No reasonable person can deny his charges."

The Communist party line, as developed in the interview with Mr. Buck is: "The United States, plunging on the road to war in an effort at world domination, is dragging Canada with it, and is dictating Canada's foreign and economic policies."

Russia, according to Mr. Buck, is arming only for defense. Her huge fleet of submarines, he said, is purely a defensive weapon.

Reminded that Germany, aggressor in the Second World War, had the then largest submarine fleet and used it aggressively, Mr. Buck agreed, but said it was different with Russia.

He also denied that the countries on Russia's border usually "Iron Curtain" satellites were in any way advised, controlled or forcibly influenced by Russia.

The U.S., he said, is the one country preparing to wage war beyond its own borders. Russia is not.

TIM BUCK... shouts loud alarm.

IT'S OCTOBER, NOT MAY FOR B.C. FIREWORKS DAY

Is British Columbia the only province in Canada where it is customary to celebrate Halloween with fireworks?

Although it was impossible to get definite confirmation on the habits of the Maritimes, it is a fact that in Saskatchewan, Manitoba and Ontario it is the custom to set off fire crackers and hold large firework displays on May 24—Empire Day. Halloween is celebrated, but not as it is here. Unthinking pranksters aren't given dangerous fireworks to play with.

Queried on the subject, Police Chief John Blackstock couldn't say what other provinces did. He didn't think the idea of changing fireworks day from Oct. 31 back to May 24 would be good. "It is our dry season then," he pointed out.

Thorne in Double Role With Taxi Driver's Help

As the crow flies, it's two and one-quarter miles between the York Theatre, on Government

Street, and Victoria College, on Lansdowne Road.

The crow didn't fly Thursday night, however. It left the route open for actor-director-teacher Ian Thorne.

Thorne, who is director and actor in the York Theatre Company's current presentation of "Thunder Rock," found himself in the predicament last night of having to be in two places at the same time. He had to appear in the play and, at the same time, was supposed to take his usual Thursday night class in "Art of the Theatre" at the evening division of Victoria College.

Thorne handled the situation this way: He went to the theatre early, donned make-up and costume and then rushed by taxi to the college where, at 7:30, he set his class to play reading. Then, he jumped back into the taxi, returned to the theatre, and went on stage at 8.

His first scene over in 15 minutes, he jumped back into the taxi and returned to the college to see how his students were doing. He stayed until it was time for him to rush back to the theatre to make his other appearance in the second act.

"It's a bit unethical to be going about in public in make-up," he conceded. "But it solved the problem."

A Willows School pupil won the Victoria Daily Times Pumpkin Contest, it was announced by judges today.

She is eight-year-old Lynn Hunter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. Hunter, 2986 Westdowne.

Lynn took first prize with a big pumpkin weighing 73 pounds, topping 35 other entries.

"I never thought my pumpkin would grow and grow and become the winner," said Lynn on hearing she had won the contest. "The seeds looked so tiny when I planted them in June."

Patty Johnson, 465 Vincent, was runner-up with a specimen tipping the scales at 66 pounds, while Brian Lamb, 4190 Cedar Hill Road, was third with a 64-pounder.

Other winners were: Brian Webb, Shawinigan Lake, fourth; Robert Mitchell, fifth; Sidney Turnbull, sixth; John MacKintosh, seventh; John Fraser, eighth; Barry Phill, ninth, and James Galle, tenth.

Total of $25 will be divided among the top 10 winners.

Elevator Court Action Adjourned

An application by Kerr, Gifford Inc. to quash the sale of the grain elevator to Hallet & Carey (B.C.) Ltd. was adjourned for a week in Supreme Court Chambers today.

Harman, Sloan & McKenzie, solicitors for Kerr, Gifford, said "no comment" when queried on a rumor that the two firms are negotiating to operate the elevator jointly.

A report that the two companies may incorporate a new company to handle grain for both of them, is current.

City Council at its meeting Thursday approved the agreement between the city and Hallet & Carey, subject to approval of the minister of municipal affairs and the federal minister of transport.

Buses Claimed Parking Hogs

Police Commission to Press for Changes; B.C.E.R. States Suggestions Impractical

B.C. Electric transportation officials today condemned as impractical a number of suggestions made at a city police commission meeting to ease the downtown parking problem.

Mayor Claude L. Harrison and Ald. Brent Murdoch of the commission feel buses monopolize too much space in the business district, and will apply to the city council for a change.

"The present parking problem is driving people away from the business district to the outside areas," commented Mayor Harrison, "and we must improve parking facilities."

The mayor likes the idea of the old "trolley car system" for taking on and discharging bus passengers.

"There's a lot of waste space that could be used by motorists in our present system of providing zones for buses only," said the mayor at this morning's meeting of the commission.

"I would like to see no more than a 20-foot strip set aside in each block for buses. As in other big centres the buses can double-park and take on or discharge passengers in that zone," said Mayor Harrison.

"If there is not enough room on present routes we can seek a re-routing to fit in with the plan," he added. The idea is to have buses use streets wide enough so that they can double-park to enable other traffic to go around them.

The commission will present this plan to the City Council. All these suggestions were scorned by the B.C. Electric men as having been tried in other cities and abandoned.

First, they said, buses are 35 feet long and would project far into traffic if picking up passengers from a 20-foot space.

"Any move to load away from the curb is a backward step," said one official. "Street cars were abandoned because they backed up traffic behind them, and were not safe for passenger loading and unloading."

Shoppers' Views Valuable

"It has been found that once a bus system is reouted business falls off even more in the areas by-passed," they said. "It would be interesting to find out what the ladies think of such a proposal. They do most of the shopping."

Streets were developed to let traffic move, not to store cars, they said. Off-street parking is the trend in cities that have passed through the phase Victoria now is in, they said.

The police governing board will also ask the council to look over the "city-owned" property to see which might be available for parking lots to citizens at a nominal fee.

The mayor agreed with Commissioner Murdoch that fines for parking infractions and parking meter revenue should be utilized for the betterment of parking facilities in the city.

Chief of Police John Blackstock agreed with the commission members that "something has to be done to improve parking for shopping motorists in the downtown area."

Scott Requests Swindle Probe

Attorney-General Robert Bonner was asked this afternoon to name a Royal Commission to investigate the Gillies-Walls swindle case.

A request came from W. A. Scott, a swindle victim, and from unsuccessful Social Credit candidates Mrs. Lydia Arsen and Elmer McEwen and Lou Hoelker.

Mr. Scott wants a full-dress probe into other frauds in which he alleges Gillies was involved.

Students to See 'Thunder Rock' at Reduced Prices

Local students "can stretch out their allowances tonight if they want to see York Theatre Company's "Thunder Rock" because 60-cent seats will be offered them at half price.

The generous price reduction will serve two purposes. It will attract some students who have never known the thrill of a professional, "live" stage production, and the drama will hold them spellbound.

The story concerns the escape of an embittered young newspaperman from a cynical world. His efforts to avoid life by taking a job as a lighthouse-keeper in a remote part of Lake Michigan have strange and rewarding results.

The lead roll is played by Dewey Harless, young Portland actor.

"Thunder Rock" will be presented again tonight and every night for another five days. A matinee will be given on Saturday at 2:30.

Because of the absence of Commissioner Bill Hamilton the commission did not take any action on the matter. It will be reviewed at the next meeting of the board.

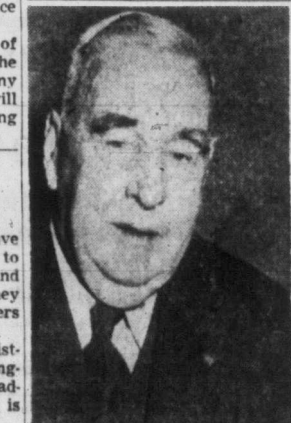

Christmas Mails Deadline Nov. 21

Post Office authorities have issued their annual warning to Victoria and Vancouver Island residents to mail early if they intend to send Christmas letters or packages overseas.

Deadline for sending Christmas parcels to the United Kingdom is November 21, and deadline for Christmas letters is November 23.

Christmas parcels to continental Europe must be mailed by November 17 and letters not later than November 21.

All parcels must have a customs declaration affixed to the outside.

Distinguished Victoria soldier, Col. Cy. Peck, V.C., of the First World War, was reported to be in an "improved condition" at Royal Jubilee Hospital today.

He was discharged from D.V.A. hospital on Oct. 6.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to the Times, addressed to "Ask the Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest.

Q.—Why does so great a portion of the cultivated blackberry crop fall to ruin, although fully mature?—J. H. G.

A.—A mile develops in the berries and feeds on them. As a result they will not ripen, but turn reddish. The condition is known as "red berry." There is a successful spray control.

Q.—Is it true that criminals condemned to die were hanged on Topaz Hill, site of the present S. J. Willis Junior High School?—J. H. G.

A.—Yes. It was the scene of executions for years. The jail yard was north of the present school site. Bodies were buried there.

This Dandy Lamp Goes Out When Book 'Droops'

By PENNY SAVER

I was driving to work this morning with a friend and during the course of the conversation he said, "You know, I don't know what I'm going to do. My electric light bill seems to be getting higher every month."

He went on to explain that he always read for a time when he went to bed and then nearly always fell asleep and forgot to turn off the light.

"I often wake up in the morning and find the light still burning," he told me.

With this in mind I set off to town this morning with the faint hope of finding something to help him.

I'm happy to say that tomorrow morning I'll have good news for him.

This is the solution: A little lamp that clips on to the binding or a page of the book and... wonders of wonders... when the book "droops" as you doze off, the light goes out.

It's astounding! The book-lamp comes ivory, blue and brown. When it is clipped to the book the light is concentrated on the pages, not wasted anywhere else and, of course, it won't disturb anyone else.

I won't forget to tell my friend that it uses one-tenth of the current of an ordinary lamp. In fact, you get 50 hours of light for one penny. The lamp is priced at $2.49.

Grandma Moses is at it again!

It seems that as she ages the more famous she becomes. She has now had three of seven patterns she has created imprinted on material for drapes.

These are called "Childhood Home," "Checkerboard House" and "Early Spring."

The drapes sell at $3.50 a yard.

This Youth Needs Mental Organization

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

Some people are not methodical and well organized. They fail in whatever they undertake. What causes this disorganization and how can it be cured is the question this young man asks:

Q: "Everyone says I have ability but I lose one job after another. It is not that I am not conscientious about my work because I am and I sincerely want to make a success so I can marry and have a family as other men do. But I am always pulling boners. I forget something important I am supposed to do, I miss appointments, and I get things all mixed up. What is the matter with me and how can I get over this?"

A: You are suffering from mental disorganization. This doesn't mean you can't do well. But you are working below your capacities.

So long as you continue to be disorganized, you will fail. No business organization can afford to employ a person who makes boners too often.

What can you do to correct this fault? Start in with a plan for the day. Carry a note book around with you and consult it frequently. Put down the important things you are supposed to do, the times you are supposed to do them, and the order in which they are to be done. Every hour or two, check your book to see if you have forgotten anything.

If you are told to do something tomorrow, jot it down in your book before you forget it. When tomorrow comes, the note will remind you of what you are to do. Nothing breaks up mental disorganization more quickly than using a note book systematically. After a year or so of this discipline, you may find that you can get along with only your "mental" note book.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

12-Year-Old Wonders If She's Overweight

Q: "I am 12 years old and I worry a lot about my weight. Please tell me if I am overweight. I am 5 feet 4½ inches tall and weigh 123 pounds."

A: No, you are not overweight, but just about right so do not worry any more.

Q: "You are always advising people about how to lose weight but never about how to gain. Do I need to gain weight? I am five feet tall and weigh 100 pounds. I have a small build. I would especially like to have more shape in my legs. Do you know what I could do without taking too much exercise?"

A: You are on the low side although, since your build is slight, you really are not underweight. You might look better with a gain of three or four pounds. Take heel lifting exercises. Rise high on your toes. Lower heels. Continue.

Q: "I am 19 years old, five feet tall and weigh 109 pounds. My bust measures 33½ inches; waist, 27 inches; and hips, 34 inches. I am not overweight but I look chubby. My waist is very short which may account for it. I have followed your waist-reducing exercise for four weeks without any difference. The exercise I do starts with arms shoulder level, raise the right arm up by the ear, bend right reaching for the floor with the left hand. Am I doing it incorrectly?"

A: You are not doing it as directed although even as you have done it, it should have helped. Raise your right arm up by your ear, bend-left touching the left hand to the floor. Raise trunk, arms sideways. Then lift the left

Church of Our Lord Is the Setting For Pat Thomas-David Miller Rites

Dr. J. G. Brown officiated at a double-ring ceremony in Church of Our Lord recently which united Patricia Helen Thomas, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Thomas, Denman Street, and David G. Miller, only son of Mrs. Kathleen Miller, Royal Anne Mansions, and late Capt. T. A. Miller, Weyburn, Sask.

During signing of the register, Mrs. H. Wilson sang "Through the Years," with J. Ingram Smith at the organ.

The bride was radiant in gleaming white satin, fashioned with standup collar and yoke of lace, lily point sleeves and skirt sweeping into a graceful train edged with French lace. A coronet of pearls held her finger-tip veil of nylon net and she carried a cascade of red rosebuds and stephanotis. Mr. Thomas gave his daughter in marriage.

Miss Elaine Thomas, maid of honor for her sister, was gown in pale blue net over satin, the bodice and short jacket with three-quarter-length sleeves being of satin. Miss Jackie Baker and Mrs. Peggy Sylvester, bride's attendants, chose pink and mauve respectively, styled with broad bodice and jacket, and skirt of net over taffeta. They wore bandeaux of matching flowers in their hair, had net mitts, and carried bouquets of chrysanthemums and carnations to tone.

Miss Adrien Thomas, small sister of the bride, was a pretty flower girl in a long pale blue frock of taffeta with net overskirt and matching taffeta jacket. She had white flowers in her hair, blue net mitts, and carried a Colonial bouquet of harmonizing flowers.

The best man was V. Dick Wiloughby, Jr., and ushers were Garry Abbott and Gerry Sylvester.

The mothers of the newlyweds received guests with them at the reception held at Loughheed's Banquet Club.

The three-tiered cake, topped with rosebuds and bedded in filmy tulle, centred the candlelit table which was decorated with pink and white chrysanthemums. Henry Hill, who proposed toast at bride's parents wedding, also toasted their daughter.

For traveling to Portland, the bride wore a green gabardine suit with matching hat trimmed with brown feathers, brown accessories and a corsage of deep cream roses. The couple will live in Victoria.

TOP HIT TUNE BLAMED FOR HALTING PROGRESS OF WORKERS

LONDON, Oct. 31 (AP) — The B.B.C. has ordered disc jockeys on its "Music While You Work" program for factory employees to stop playing a top-hit tune—"Sugarbush."

Said the B.B.C.: "Sugarbush features intricate handclapping as a part of its rhythm and some machine shop workers reportedly have been hitting machinery with their tools in time with the handclaps."

"There have been some disastrous results," the B.B.C. admitted ruefully.

ALARM 'FAILURE' AS BOYD ESCAPED

Don Jail Governor Tells Commission
Of Precautions to Prevent Prison Breaks

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (BUP) — A fear that the underworld would raid his home and seize all keys to cells detaining the Edwin Alonzo Boyd gang prompted Don Jail Governor T. W. Brand to connect an electrically-operated alarm system between the jail and the police switchboard.

A test, made before the gang escaped Sept. 8, showed 50 policemen could be at the jail within three minutes.

There was no alarm given, however, the night Boyd and his cohorts mysteriously "walked" to freedom.

Brand told about the precautions Thursday in testimony to a Royal commission investigating the escape. He told about other precautions he had ordered, including the posting of riflemen above and outside the exercise yard.

MORE TEAR GAS

Brand said he increased the supply of tear gas at the jail, ordered the guards to sign for keys on assuming duties and ordered cooks to account for all knives and other kitchen equipment. He also suggested a month before the escape that a lever-locking system be installed in the cells from which the men escaped. He said the suggestion was put before the city's board of control.

If the lever-locking system had been put in, he said, the men could not have escaped from their individual cells with a home-made key since the lever to open the cells would have been outside the jail corridor.

The governor said that before the escape he and two soldiers had combed the exercise yard with a mine detector looking for hacksaw blades. They found only a horseshoe, a tin cup and a pair of pliers.

MISSED CAMOUFLAGE

"In view of the evidence it seems I must have missed the camouflage in the cut bars," he said, referring to testimony that a mixture of softened soap and dirt had probably been used to disguise the cuts.

The governor contradicted previous evidence given by deputy governor Alexander Noble, who said he had not been personally instructed about safety measures applying to the Boyd gang. Brand said he talked to Noble three times about them.

Store Closing Holy Day Law To Be Ignored

MONTREAL, Oct. 31 (CP) — A Montreal by-law ordering stores to close on Roméo-Catholique holy days will be ignored for the third time Saturday on All Saints' Day.

Seven large stores, which launched and won a superior court action against the by-law last time, have announced they will remain open. A number of smaller stores have indicated they will follow suit.

Although a judgment by Mr. Justice A. L. Smith June 17 declared both the by-law and the provincial statute on which it was based ultra vires, the by-law still is in effect pending hearing of an appeal by the city. The appeal is expected to be heard next January.

The seven stores involved are T. Eaton Co. Ltd., of Montreal; Henry Morgan and Co. Ltd.; Robert Simpson Montreal Ltd.; Jas. A. Ogilvy's Ltd.; Holt, Renfrew Co. Ltd.; Henry Birks and Sons (Montreal) Ltd.; and Mapin's Ltd.

Mayor Will Name Committee To Study Servicemen's Hostel

The Y.M.C.A. building on Blanshard Street is considered an "ideal location" for a servicemen's hostel by Ald. Frank Mulliner. The matter came before council meeting Thursday.

"It is known the 'Y' is looking for bigger quarters," Ald. Mulliner told City Council meeting.

The meeting had just approved a motion of Ald. Brent Murdoch that the mayor appoint a special committee of three to study the hostel question.

"The matter of accommodation is definitely a federal responsibility," said Ald. Mulliner. "It is a crime to have these men around with nowhere to go."

He stated the services had looked into the possibility of the Y.M.C.A. building. But it is out of the picture at present, he said, since the association has insufficient funds to erect the large building required.

Tumblers Will Feature Big Rotary Show

Tuckerettes Coming Here

Modern vaudeville acts, which will include acrobatics, singing, dancing and comedy, will be seen here next week when the Rotary Club stages its annual presentation of professional talent.

The Rotary Show will be presented Tuesday and Wednesday nights, starting at 8:15, at the Royal Theatre.

Featured act will be appearance of the Tuckerettes, a two-girl and one-man team of tumblers, who will work on a bouncing trampoline.

Alice Hulet, known as "the red-headed bombshell of dance," will be another headline on the show bill. Bob and Diana Scott, fresh from "Song of Norway," will present "Moods of Music."

On the lighter side there will be Johnny Watson, presenting his "Mr. Versatility" routine, and Lou Masconi and Camille, who will stage "Echoes of Musical Comedy."

Jack McCoy is another comedian scheduled to appear. Also slated for a turn is Slyter, known as the millionaire playboy.

William El Cota and Beatrice will present their display of magic to wind up the show.

Tickets for both shows now are on sale at Fletcher's music store. Proceeds will go to Rotary charities.

YOUNG VET—Yvonne Chouteau, a top ballerina with the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo, is only 23 years old but is already a veteran in the ballet field. Israeli Names Desert After Toronto M.P.

TORONTO, Oct. 31 (BUP) — David Croll (Lib. Spadina) will have 125 acres of Israeli desert named after him in recognition of his service to Israel.

The land in the Negev, to be known as "Nachlat David Croll" will be reclaimed by Ontario Jews, said Joseph Gottlieb, executive director Jewish National Fund in making the announcement.

A scroll will be presented to Croll here Dec. 1 at a dinner to be attended by Israeli representatives and Canadian Jewish leaders.

"We feel this is the finest way of showing Mr. Croll how deeply we appreciate all he has done," Gottlieb said.

Since many of Croll's efforts have involved confidential, liaison jobs, no detailed description of his work will be given at the dinner.

However, Gottlieb said the Israeli government, aware of what he has done, wanted him to make a second trip to Israel to receive formal thanks.

TWO for the SHOW

By PHIL LEE

(RR) LES MISERABLES (Royal)—Possibly I am low in my rating of this Victor Hugo classic but I have such definite ideas concerning the characters the great French novelist conceived that I am more than ordinarily critical.

Personally I prefer my Javert, the human bloodhound who follows paroled convict Jean Valjean implacably through the years to be grim, morose and silent. I found Robert Newton in this role to be far too chatty. Indeed I found the entire film too chatty. Rather I would have had the scenes stark and tense, acting taking predominance over dialogue.

I think, too, the picture could have been seen to better effect in the plot—all well and wonderful in the book—had been abridged to delete the galley scenes. This would have tightened the film considerably and given it a slower, more relentless pace.

But here and now I would commend Michael Rennie. His portrayal of Jean Valjean, the bitter convict who learned love and tolerance from a kindly bishop (Edmund Gwenn) and rose from

Harvest time means Libby's TOMATO JUICE is back in full supply

Yes, the shortage is over! Canada's favourite tomato juice is back on grocer's shelves. It's Canada's favourite because it's always the same delicious juice... always fresh and sweet-tasting, never bitter, because the rosy-ripe tomatoes get just a gentle press. It takes more tomatoes to fill a tin the "gentle press" Libby's way, and you can actually taste the difference. Enjoy some today.

PULLET SETS RECORD
NEW BOSTON, N.H. (UP)—An eight-month-old pullet here laid an egg containing four yolks, the first such egg on record in New Hampshire.

"IN ON A POOL"

Last Friday night, the G.F. & me, were squeezed in Sect. 33, watching The Flyers & The Cats below, as the battle waged to & fro. Marz flashed by, as he closed on the net. Suddenly his rifle spitted fire, the rebound whammed in, by Jack McIntyre. I leaped in the air, & shouted out loud, as did the rest of that vast crowd. As we settled again for a fresh attack, with my knees jammed in the other guy's back, I said to the G.F., who was still pop-eyed, "The Spider is hitting his old-time stride." "Yes," she said, "a lovely goal. I choked on a peanut I swallowed whole." During intermission we joined in the rush, she had chocolate, & I had Orange Crush. Do YOU need a rug, the big room size? then come down here & get pop-eyed; the loveliest rugs I ever did see, and the Underfelt we throw in FREE. Just $39.00, so you can afford, one look at these, & you'll be floor'd. Then we returned to join the roars, sat down again on the 2 by fours. Once again, that back & forth sweep, with the Cougars slowly going to sleep. The enemy leaped & twice they scored, so when once more we left our board, I said to her, "This gives me a pain, we could easily lose the rest of this game." But the Cougars were all set to destroy, especially the leader, Mr. Ed Dorohoy. "I'm afraid it's too late," as I looked at the clock, then something HIT me a mighty sock. "Great Sufferin' Whiskers, I did implore, 'I hope NO ONE now, does change that score.' 'Well—WHY?' she asked, 'it's 2 to 1, with 5 minutes left before the gun.' 'I know... I KNOW, don't be a fool, there's $50 DOLLARS & I'm in on a pool. I just remember—'ed," & I pulled out our goalie, Cotnor, out. "Which way," she implored, "to collect each fin. 2 to one for The Flyers or The Cougars to win???" "I CAN'T REMEMBER, all that I know, if it STAYS 2-1 I might get the dough." "Oh," she cried, "what a mess to be in, NOT to know if we want the Cougars to win. Look in your pockets. Oh, this is grotesque." "I know," I repeated, "that slip's in my desk." We let our breath out, when no one did sock-it, next day I stuffed $50, & bulged my pants pocket.

THE CAINE MUTINY
The radio shack and bring Lieutenant Keefe the Fox sked on the double.
"Aye aye, sir." The sailor darted out of the cabin.
The "Fox skeds" were the log sheets on which all dispatches sent to Navy ships at sea were copied by the radio operators. These were preserved for several months, then destroyed. Dispatches concerning the ship were recopied on separate forms. It was such a retyped form that lay moldering in Willie's khakis in the clip shack.
"The next thing, Tom," said the captain calmly, "is to break that message faster than you've ever done anything in your life."
In a few minutes the coding machine began clicking in the wardroom. The captain went out. When Keefe had whirled through the message De Vries returned and handed the breakdown to Willie. "Lieutenant Commander William H. de Vries USN detached when relieved. Report to BuPers by air transportation for further assignment. Class two priority authorized. Training duty of Lieutenant Commander Philip F. Queeg has been canceled and he is proceeding to relieve at once."
Willie returned the dispatch to the captain. "I'm sorry, sir. It's incredible stupidity and carelessness on my part," he said, choking over the words. "I don't know what else to say, sir, except—"
De Vries leaned his head on his hand for a moment. "Have you any idea, Keith, how serious the mislaying of an action dispatch can be?"
"Yes, sir."
"I'm not sure you have."
The captain picked up a stack of long yellow forms on his desk. "By a coincidence which is perhaps unlucky, I've been filling out the work sheet of your fitness report this morning, together with those of the other officers. I have to submit them to the Bureau when I'm detached. What just happened called for me to give you an unsatisfactory fitness report. It's an unpleasant, dirty thing to do. These sheets lie in the Bureau forever. I don't like to wreck a man's naval career, even when he regards it lightly."
"I don't regard it lightly, sir. I've made a bad mistake and I'm desperately sorry. I've made that as clear as words can make it."
"Maybe now is the time to clean up your report," said the captain. He pulled out one of the forms from the batch, picked up a pencil, and wrote several lines in his unexpectedly neat small hand. He gave the report to Willie. Underneath "General Remarks" he had written this:
"Ensign Keith seems a bright and apt young man. He has been

SO MEAN TO EACH OTHER, MAN, WIFE GET SEPARATE DIVORCES
LONDON, Oct. 31 (UP)—Percy Coombs, of London, and his wife, Bertha, were so mean to each other that each was granted a divorce on grounds of cruelty.
The judge said Coombs maintained a "freezing and surly attitude" toward his wife, pushed her around, and once threw a chair at her.
Mrs. Coombs, he said, lowered the temperature of her husband's greenhouse to damage his plants, put sugar in his motorcycle tank, refused to cook for him, and turned off the gas so he couldn't cook for himself.
The court ruled it was impossible to apportion the blame for the breakup of the marriage.

Willie, tingling with excitement, scampered down the ladder to the fantail. He lost his footing on the slippery deck and fell. A wave of salty water broke over him, drenching him. The dripping float clanked onto the deck. When Maryk clambered aboard his eye fell on the bedraggled figure of Willie. "What the hell happened to you, Keith? Did you dive in, too?" The sailors noticed Willie now and snickered.
"Got too interested watching you," said Willie. "That was great work!"
Maryk swept water from his broad brown chest and shoulders with his palms. "Hell, I've been looking for an excuse to take a dip. Come on, Keith, you and me need new clothes."
Willie dumped his sodden khakis in a heap in a corner of the clipping shack. He had completely forgotten the dispatch in his pocket. There it lay, dissolving to a pulp inside the crumpled khakis, while the ship steamed through manoeuvres for the next two days.
On the third day the formation moved in to shallow waters near a beach, and swept some dummy mines. Willie was sitting on the deck, deep in a thorny analysis of his recent experiences.
"Ensign Keith, report to the captain's cabin on the double!" The announcement rasped through the loudspeaker, bringing him to his feet. As he ran to the wardroom he rapidly reviewed possible reasons for the summons.
De Vries, in trousers and undershirt, sat at his desk, glowering at a long list of dispatch headings, one of which was circled in heavy red crayon. Beside him stood Tom Keefe and the radio-man who had brought Willie the forgotten message three days ago.
The sight told Willie all. He experienced a longing to vanish or die.
"Willie," said the captain in a level, not unkind tone, "three days ago this ship received a dispatch addressed to us for action. I learned this interesting fact for the first time five minutes ago while making a routine check of the headings of all dispatches received while we were at sea. I always do that when we come into port. These dull habits sometimes pay off. Now, the radio shack has orders to shoot action dispatches to the coding officer the instant they come in. Snuffy Smith here claims he gave the message to you three days ago. Is he lying?"
The radioman blurted, "Sir, I gave it to you on the after deck-house while they were recovering paravanes. You remember!"
"You did, Smith," said Willie. "I'm sorry, Captain. It's my fault."
"I see. Have you decoded the message?"
"No, sir. I'm sorry, but it—"
"Very well, Smith, lay up to

A Warning about Foreign Attachments to Telephones

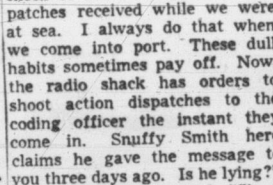

Telephone subscribers are reminded that the use of telephone attachments unauthorized by the Telephone Company is contrary to regulations governing telephone service. This is pointed out because from time to time certain devices of this kind appear on the market and are offered for sale or for rent to telephone users.

The regulation applying to "non-approved devices" follows:

The subscribers shall not use or permit to be used any electrical or mechanical apparatus or device in connection with the equipment or facilities furnished by the Company without the written consent of the Company, or permit the attachment of advertising devices thereto. If any apparatus or device of any kind other than those furnished or approved by the Company are attached to or connected with, any part of the Company's property, the Company may remove such apparatus or device or terminate the service.

This regulation is, of course, in the interests of good telephone service and, therefore, for the protection of telephone subscribers generally. Some attachments to telephones can impair service. And interference with service on one telephone does not stop with that instrument. Others are bound to be affected.

THE DOCTOR SAYS Your Blood Bank Must Be Kept Filled

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

Millions of people either during the last world war or since then have contributed their blood through the Red Cross blood program. But millions of others have held back either because they feared they themselves would be harmed by contributing.

First, I should like to say something about the need. Few people have to be told now that blood saves lives among those injured in warfare.

Indeed, this is one of the principal reasons for the new record low death rate among men wounded in war.

But this is not all. The use of blood in the civilian population is of enormous importance. Blood is literally life-giving in many human diseases, and after many injuries or accidents. The fact that it is immediately available when needed has helped thousands of men, women and children utterly unconnected with the fighting front.

It is essential, too, that we have a good stockpile of blood in event of emergencies. If an atom bomb should fall, it might leave many thousands of people injured, and for them blood and its products would be the greatest single life-saving medicine. Much as we should like to, we cannot shut our eyes to this terrifying possibility.

NOTHING TO FEAR

This gives an idea of the need for blood, which is estimated in the U.S. at about five million pints per year.

From the standpoint of the person who gives blood, there is nothing to fear. The prospective donor is tested before the blood is taken and if there is any disease present or any abnormality which makes it inadvisable to take it, he or she is passed over.

But for the normal person, giving blood is safe and easy, painless and harmless. It can be given three to five times a year, and when one considers the enormous benefit which this blood provides, such donations seem little enough to give.

Telegraph Costs To U.S. Up 18%

The increase was authorized Wednesday by the Board of Transport Commissioners at Ottawa.

Sect Women Finish Terms

VANCOUVER, Oct. 31 (CP)—Prison doors were opened this week at Kingston, Ont., for about 12 radical Doukhobor women from British Columbia, a member of the consultative committee on Doukhobor affairs reported here tonight.

The member, David Kahma, said they were the last of 23 Sons of Freedom women sentenced to five-year terms in 1947 for inciting to violence in the Kootenays of British Columbia.

He said 12 of all of whom served their full terms, have returned to their homes in B.C. They were sentenced following a wave of arson which swept the Kootenays while Judge Harry Sullivan was conducting a Royal commission investigation into the Doukhobor problem.

The sentences were served at Kingston because B.C. has no jail facilities to handle female prisoners serving more than two years.

COUNCIL 'DISCORD' RAPPED BY JAYCEES

Letter Feels 'Personality Conflict' Must Be Worked Out by City Members Themselves

Victoria Junior Chamber of Commerce believes there are "signs of personality conflict and discord generally on the part of the City Council."

At the same time it feels the "discord" must be worked out by members of council themselves, according to a letter read at council meeting, Thursday.

The letter was received and filed and the chamber thanked for its "solicitude."

Following recent publicity about dissension, the chamber's civic affairs committee interviewed the mayor, aldermen, city manager and city clerk.

The chamber felt the publicity suggested "there was discord as to whether the city manager scheme was being allowed to function unfettered."

The committee concluded that the scheme and present manager were approved by a majority of council.

It felt any infringements of the manager's duties were "not sufficiently flagrant to merit a major issue being taken."

NOT ADAPTED

Some members of council, they felt, had not adapted themselves to the manager plan and "unconsciously carried on with the old system."

"An intelligent analysis by the members of the council of the manager by-laws would undoubtedly serve a useful purpose," the committee stated.

They found that "a large majority of council definitely favors the city manager plan" and were satisfied with the present manager and his accomplishments.

"The Junior Chamber concludes that the issues and difficulties are largely of a nebulous and personal nature and ones which should be remedied internally by the members of council in whom we of the Junior Chamber have the greatest faith."

The letter was signed by Gordon H. Carter, president.

SAND POINT, Ont., Oct. 31 (BUP)—Seven families were left homeless when fire destroyed a 100-year-old former hotel building in Sand Point, Ont., late Thursday night.

Twenty-five persons fled the blaze but did not have time to remove their furniture or personal effects. The building had been converted into apartments some time ago.

Officials estimated the loss at more than $25,000.

Air Force Investigates Crash That Kills 2

CLARESHOLM, Alta., Oct. 31 (BUP)—Air Force investigators today sought the cause of a crash that killed a veteran R.C.A.F. pilot.

The Harvard-trained, on a routine flight from No. 3 flying training school, plunged to earth late Thursday and plowed a large crater in a field on the farm of Wesley Sinclair.

The scene was about 75 miles south of Calgary.

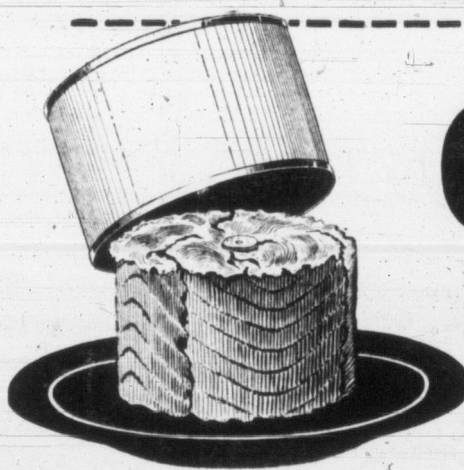

The farmer discovered the bodies. He said one of the men was half out of the plane with his parachute draped around him.

NOT IN THE CARDS

CHILLICOTHE, O.—(UP)—The cards that "Professor" Livingston Mayes, 59, Cincinnati, handed out indicated he could see clearly the troubles of others and could give appropriate advice, but they failed to work for him. He was arrested and ordered to leave town.

Fire Trucks Rush to Jail Riot

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 31 (AP)—All downtown Columbus fire trucks were ordered to Ohio Penitentiary late today to answer a riot call. Police said only that a riot was in progress.

Stevenson Train Backs Into Mob

ABOARD STEVENSON SPECIAL, Oct. 31 (AP)—Gov. Adlai Stevenson's campaign train—without him aboard—suddenly backed into a crowd at Silver Spring, Md., today and caused wild-shouts and screams but nobody was injured. About 1,000 men and women had gathered closely around the rear platform when the train slowly started moving backward without warning—apparently through a mix-up in signals.

Lewis, Coal Operators Agree

WASHINGTON, Oct. 31 (AP)—John L. Lewis and hard-coal operators were reported informally today to have agreed on a new wage contract for 65,000 anthracite workers. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, spent the morning in a bargaining session with the operators' wage committee headed by Edward Fox.

Bolivia Nationalizes Tin Mines

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Oct. 31 (AP)—Bolivia today nationalized the tin mines owned by the country's three biggest producers—the Patiño, Hochschild and Aramayo Companies. Tin is Bolivia's only major export and her biggest source of income—about 70 per cent of the total.

14 Years' Hard Labor for Burglaries

VANCOUVER, Oct. 31 (CP)—James C. Hall, 29, today was sentenced to 14 years' hard labor after he admitted burglarizing 18 homes in the last two months. Prosecutor Gordon Scott said Hall had a long record, including housebreakings, thefts and two escapes from custody in Ontario.

Stevenson Ordered Ultimatum to Rioters

CHESTER, Ill., Oct. 31 (AP)—Rebelling convicts at Menard State prison surrendered today under an ultimatum delivered at the direction of Governor Adlai Stevenson to release their seven hostages or be stormed by state troopers. State police, armed with machine-guns, massed at both entrances to the east cell house as Michael Seyffert, state director of public safety, delivered the ultimatum over a loud speaker.

The convicts, who had been bottled up in the cell house since Monday, hesitated momentarily, then a state police captain got tough. "Release those guards and do it immediately," he shouted to the convicts as he stood at the entrance of the cell block. "Otherwise we are coming in. And it won't be funny if we come in."

After releasing their hostages, the 339 convicts marched back to their cells. The guards were haggard and hungry. Two of them had to be helped by guards on the outside. They had not eaten since they had been taken captive Monday. Visibly tired from his presidential campaign which he had interrupted to come here, Stevenson had gone into the prison yard only a few minutes before. Later Stevenson said in an interview "It was my personal decision" to make the ultimatum. He added that the job of carrying out his order was "kept in proper channels." He explained he meant that other state officials actually delivered the ultimatum.

Facing New Strike Tie-Up

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 31 (AP)—A new Pacific Coast shipping tie-up was threatened today by A.P.L. sailors. They ordered stop-work meetings in major ports to protest failure of the Wage Stabilization Board to approve strike-won pay raises.

Harry Johnson, assistant secretary of the Sailor's Union of the Pacific, called the meetings and warned:

"In the mood they're in, I wouldn't be surprised if the men voted to tie up the coast."

Swedish, U.S. Ships Victims

Two Lose Lives in Savage Gales On Atlantic; Freighter Dux Safe

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., Oct. 31 (CP)—The first gale of the traditional storm season blew itself out over Greenland today, after sinking two ships and taking at least two lives.

The 700-ton Swedish cargo vessel Ryholm sank in the St. Lawrence river 23 miles east of Quebec after colliding with the Swiss freighter Basilea.

All crew members apparently were rescued and the Basilea was only slightly damaged.

Two deaths were reported earlier, John Leonard, 28, of St. John's, Nfld., was lost overboard from the Queen of Bermuda 35 miles off the coast from Queen City, Md. Albert Keeping, 21, of

Trawler Crew Abandons Ship

One of the first victims of the storm was the Boston-based trawler Newton. After fighting a losing battle her crew abandoned ship and scrambled aboard another American trawler, the St. Nicholas.

The St. Nicholas today was still battling heaving seas about 300 miles east of Cape Race, Nfld.

The 7,151-ton Alendi Hill, a British freighter en route to Hampton Roads, Va. is further at sea and Thursday night reported she was "barely holding her own."

Rush to Mother's Side

Ike in Bitter Counter-Attack

General Makes Spirited Drive To Secure Support in Illinois

By MERRIMAN SMITH
EN ROUTE WITH EISENHOWER, Oct. 31 (UP)—A tired but increasingly confident Dwight D. Eisenhower made a last-hour plane trip to Illinois today in a move to take 27 home-state electoral votes from Governor Adlai E. Stevenson, his Democratic opponent.

The Republican presidential candidate seemed to be driving harder than at any time since his nomination and he appeared more robust than many of the younger aides in his campaign party.

Eisenhower smiled often but he was bitter. He said Thursday at Madison Square Garden this was "the most scurrilous campaign in American political history."

He said President Truman and other opponents had turned against him when they realized the Republican Party had not been split by his nomination. He said Nazi propaganda Joseph Goebbels and Nazi Jew-baiter Julius Streicher "had done quite a job on me for a number of years" and Soviet writer Ilya Ehrenburg and "the poison pen artists on Pravda have been working on me for quite a spell."

"I have been worked over by experts," Eisenhower said. "But until our success in this campaign drove our opponents to desperation, no one had ever engaged in such unrestrained slander as to charge I would trim my principles to run for office."

"I have made no deals in this campaign," Eisenhower said. "No one has a claim on me. No one has a promise from me. No one has captured me. I am my own man."

Better known as "Pat" Conroy, a former miner, Canadian Congress of Labor stalwart, and the man given the most credit for clearing Communist-dominated unions out of the C.C.L., he arrived in Victoria today to address a noon luncheon of the Pacific Northwest Personnel Managers' Association conference here.

"Business, that formerly gave almost its whole attention to production, now realizes that the human problem is the most important," he said. "Since an employer in a large organization cannot handle the job himself, he hires personnel men."

"The average trade unionist looks on the personnel department as a device to split the loyalty of employees toward their unions," he said. "Personnel men, then, must establish a working relationship with unions, and understand the feeling a man has toward his trade union."

He said, however, that labor's skepticism of these processes is part of evolution, and that the time will come when personnel experts will, of necessity, find out what makes employees and their unions "tick."

"These, of course, are generalizations, since many employers want to improve their industrial relations," Mr. Conroy said. "It has been found that the older the union-employer relationship is, the better and more mature are their feelings toward one another. They improve with age."

"Our problem is in the vast, marginal area that has had industrial relations and no feeling of confidence between the two groups," he said.

Speaking with the strong Scottish burr that he brought to Canada years ago from his native Glasgow, Mr. Conroy said that "unless the problems of industrial relationships are solved in Canada, in view of present expansion, they will add up to industrial warfare that will be bad for the whole country."

"They must be on a higher constructive level than at present," he said.

Camp Canteens, Liquor In Cafes Recommended

VANCOUVER, Oct. 31 (CP)—A brief presented to the liquor inquiry commission today by the "Loggers' Local," 171, of the I.W.A., asked for all-night liquor stores, light lunches in beer parlors, liquor in cafes and canteens in most logging camps.

It was read before chairman H. H. Stevens, Dean Cecil Swanson and George Home, by Union Secretary Fred Fleber, who said he spoke for 5,000 loggers.

"The loggers drink in excess, not because they are loggers, but because they are isolated for long periods from access to liquor," he said.

For this reason, loggers wanted canteens serving liquor in all except specially isolated camps. At these camps, they believed the question of canteens should be studied by management and labor.

CLAIMED ESSENTIAL

All-night liquor stores were essential, Mr. Fleber said, because "loggers often arrive in town after the liquor stores are closed and they have no alternative but to go to the bootleggers. 'Canteens-in-camp would cut down the loggers' tendency to over-indulge when he hits town,' he concluded.

Four individuals and one other labor organization appeared before the commission today. Only one, Mrs. R. H. Clark, spoke on behalf of the "drys."

Mrs. Clark appeared to oppose demand of some motel and auto court owners for liquor licenses.

"Liquor at auto courts would be unwise in view of the well-known fact that so many auto accidents are caused by people who have been drinking, even a little," she maintained.

Knute Buttedahl, executive secretary of the Vancouver joint labor committee to combat racial discrimination, argued that whatever liquor system is decided upon should be offered without discrimination against race, color or creed.

At one point, after several briefs had eulogized benefits of the English pub system, Dean Swanson commented: "Everybody says what we want is the English pub system—nobody has told us just what it is."

Chairman Stevens commented that there were two distinct types of English pub—the "delightful village institution" contrasted to the pubs in larger cities of far different character.

More comfortable chairs in men's beer parlors were among the requests of free-lance public relations man Bob Morrison of West Vancouver.

PAT CONROY ADVISES MANAGEMENT:

Business Faces Human Factor, Labor Doubts Personnel Men

By DON INGRAM

Business realizes that the human problem is the most important, but labor generally is skeptical of personnel efforts by employers, according to P. D. Conroy, labor attaché at the Canadian embassy in Washington, D.C.

He said, however, that labor's skepticism of these processes is part of evolution, and that the time will come when personnel experts will, of necessity, find out what makes employees and their unions "tick."
